MOVE TO DISMISS WET INDICTMENTS

Many Liquor Cases In County Court Will Be Affected By Judge Fowler's Decision As To Whether Indictments Charging Only Possession Shall Be Thrown Out.

County court convened Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with County Judge Joseph M. Fowler presiding, for the purpose of taking up the trial of criminal cases. Today jurors will be in attendance and the case of The People against William Brown, murder second degree, will be taken up for trial. Brown is charged with having thrown a lighted lamp at his mother while she was in bed at Saugerties and setting fire to the bed clothing, burning her so severely that she died.

District Attorney Traver presented a calendar of 32 cases, all of which he said would be ready to be taken up by The People when reached. Many of them were liquor cases in which motions to dismiss the indictments were made.

In the cases of The People vs. Robert Ortale, The People vs. Louis Pardo, The People vs. Joseph Crotty, The People vs. Robert Ortale, The People vs. Charles P. Marano, The People vs. Charles L. Mulford and the People vs. John Zeilman, liquor cases, Judge William D. Brinnier appeared and made a motion for the dismissal of the indictments on the grounds that the indictment did not charge facts sufficient to constitute a crime and on the grounds that the indictments only charged the possession of liquor and not the sale. Judge Jenkins, who appeared for William Marz in a similar case, and Andrew J. Cook, who appeared for other alleged violators of the liquor law joined in the motion, raising the point that the possession alone of liquor was not a violation of the law but that possession must be for the purpose of sale, barter, transport, etc., and that no such fact was charged in the indictment.

District Attorney Traver, opposing the motion, stated that the indictment was in accordance with the law and that the possession of liquor alone was a violation.

At the conclusion of argument, Judge Fowler reserved decision.

Mary Saccoman, Joseph Abrahams and Charles Morano, against whom sealed indictments were found, were arraigned on charges of having had intoxicating liquor in their possession. All entered a plea of not guilty.

John McGrane was arraigned on a charge of grand larceny, first degree, alleged to have been committed in the city of Kingston on October, 1920. He entered a plea of not guilty.

Andrew J. Cook made application to the court for the examination of Pietro Ortali, who is at present in the county jail, being held on a charge of robbery and having concealed weapons in his possession when arrested. Mr. Cook stated that he believed the man was either insane or mentally deficient and should be examined. District Attorney Traver did not oppose the application. Ortali about ten years ago was convicted of murder, second degree, and was later pardoned. Mr. Cook appeared for Ortali at his former trial. In asking for the examination Mr. Cook stated that Ortali had always had a desire to carry weapons and was usually harmless, but at times, in order to create excitement, he had gone down the village street shooting off a gun in the air to attract attention and was known as "Crazy Pete." Judge Fowler named Drs. E. H. Loughran and Henry Van Hoevenberg to make the examination.

The following is the calendar of criminal cases which District Attorney Traver presented and stated would be ready on the part of The People when reached:

The People vs. John Worbinsky.
The People vs. Grace Dutcher.
The People vs. William Brown.
The People vs. Sam Mignano.
The People vs. Anton J. Schmidt.
The People vs. Raymond Ryan.
The People vs. John McGrane.
The People vs. William Smith.
The People vs. George Doolittle.
The People vs. Alexander Oakley.
The People vs. Henry A. Follette.
The People vs. Theron Hall.
The People vs. Robert Ortale.
The People vs. Louis Pardo.
The People vs. Conrad Rabel.
The People vs. Frank A. Fazio.
The People vs. William Woerner.
The People vs. Casper Michels.
The People vs. Joseph Crotty.
The People vs. Richard A. Johnson.
The People vs. John Worf.
The People vs. Louis Castiglione, et al.
The People vs. James Sanders.
The People vs. Walter Carver.
The People vs. Oliver J. Auchmoody.
The People vs. James Paleteoli.
The People vs. Frank Bauman.
The People vs. Beart Saxon.
The People vs. Robert Ortale.
The People vs. Charles P. Morano.
The People vs. William Marz.
The People vs. Charles L. Mulford.
The People vs. Walter Neuls.
The People vs. Raymond Green.
The People vs. Dominico Demucco.
The People vs. John Zeilman.
The People vs. Abraham Levine.
The People vs. Joseph Abrahams.

Many of the cases will probably go over the term on motion.

Court convened this morning at 10 o'clock for the purpose of examining and excusing members of the extra panel of fifty jurors drawn. The Brown trial was commenced this afternoon at 2 o'clock when court convened for the afternoon session. W. N. Fessenden appeared for Brown.

THREE SENTENCED IN COUNTY COURT

County court convened this morning at 10 o'clock with County Judge Joseph M. Fowler presiding. The fifty extra jurors were present and after those with legal excuses had been excused, the remaining jurors were sworn.

In the case of The People vs. John Worbinsky, charged with burglary, District Attorney Traver accepted a plea of unlawful entry to a building, a misdemeanor, and Judge Fowler sentenced the prisoner to 8 months in the county jail. Thomas F. Coughlin appeared for defendant.

Grace Dutcher pleaded guilty to the second count of the indictment, that of receiving stolen goods, and was sentenced by Judge Fowler to 9 months in the county jail. Andrew J. Cook appeard for defendant.

Alexander Oakley also pleaded guilty to a charge of having driven an automobile while intoxicated and was fined $50 by the court. Mr. Oakley was not represented by counsel.

Court then took a recess until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

"STOP THIEF" TONIGHT.

Audience Saw Excellent Presentation At St. Peter's Monday.

The members of St. Peter's Dramatic Club and especially each individual of the cast are to be congratulated upon the presentation of an excellent entertainment. They deserve commendation for the unusually accurate interpretation of the characters portrayed. There was snap in the action while the continuity and interest of the plot was sustained throughout in a manner which evidences real hard work by the young ladies and gentlemen who took part in the play. Six hundred people braved the elements to attend the performance. They came to see a good show and they did! The success of the production is a source of gratification to both players and audience. "Stop Thief" will be repeated this evening probably before even a larger audience. After the performance dancing will be enjoyed to the strains of Balfe's orchestra and again refreshments will be served by the Christian Mothers and the Children of Mary. The cast is as follows:

Joan Carr—Interested in the Doctor ....Miss Martha Carter
Mrs. Carr—A little deaf ....Mrs. Robert Carter
Caroline Carr—Unattached ...Miss Agnes Bruck.
Madge Carr—To be married ....Miss Kathryn Mathela
Nell—The new maid "Clean up" girl ....Miss Caroline Bruck

Potato Yield Above Average.

Two months ago a shortage of potatoes in this state seemed probable, but according to John B. Shepard, of the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates the mild fall has resulted in a yield of 102 bushels per acre, which is several bushels above the ten-year average.

RONDOUT LODGE HONORS VETERANS

Masons Pay Respects to Those Who Have Been Members of Lodge for Fifty or More Years—There Are 15 Veterans—Address by the Rev. Dr. Oakley—Third Degree.

Monday evening Rondout Lodge No. 343 F. & A. M., had as its guests its fifty-year members of which there are fifteen, and of that number eight were able to be present at the exercises held at the lodge rooms in Masonic Building, Broadway and Strand. But one member of the lodge reaches the half century mark this year, Brother James W. Pells of Coronado, California, who was unable to be present and who was presented by proxy with a veteran's emblem.

The lodge rooms were crowded with members of the lodge and visiting brethren. The eight fifty-year veterans who were escorted into the lodge room by Past Grand Master Sam Stern were: John B. Alliger, LeGrand Becker, James Tongue, William Forde, Fred Straley, John M. Mayer, and George F. Stephan, all of Kingston, and Charles A. Pardee of Fall River, Mass.

The address of the evening was delivered by the Rev. John G. Oakley of Yonkers. Brother Oakley was raised in Rondout Lodge fifty-seven years ago, and shortly afterward removed from this city, and for the past fifty years he has been a member of the Middletown Lodge of Masons and recently received a fifty-year certificate. Brother Oakley, who bears his years well, spoke of his early manhood spent in this vicinity. He said that he boarded in New Salem in those days, and in order to get to the post office it was necessary to row across the water. He said that his application to join Rondout Lodge was taken by the late Senator Henry C. Connelly, who was his Sunday school teacher, and who was a manly man.

The senator's daughter, who had married had a young son, and the little chap wanted Mr. Oakley to let him go with him for the mail in the rowboat. That little boy, now grown to manhood, is Charles E. Hughes, secretary of state of this country, and the man on whom all the eyes of the world are fixed at the conference now being held in Washington.

Brother Oakley said that many of the delegates at this conference were Masons, and he believed that when Masons got together to talk over the peace of the world something worthwhile would be realized. In closing he paid a tribute to Washington, the first president and a brother Mason.

Last month Dr. Oakley delivered the sermon at St. Paul's M. E. Church at Middletown in the building which was erected under his direction in 1871, fifty years ago. In that year he laid the first brick and the last one, and subscribed the first dollar toward the erection and the last one.

In addition to the eight veterans who were able to be present that evening the other fifty year members are: Thad. O. Taylor, Grove Webster, and William B. Scott, of Kingston; James W. Pells of Coronado, California; Winslow Myers of Brooklyn; John S. Roosa of Eddyville, and Charles Atkins of Esopus.

In addition to paying respect to its fifty year members the lodge conferred the third degree on a class of candidates, and convened at 6 o'clock to confer the first section. The five who received the degree were George E. Lowe, Charles Burger, DeWitt E. Birdsall, Clarence S. Rowe and Henry E. Myers.

After the degree work the tables were spread in the lodge rooms and refreshments served. Past Grand Master Sam Stern presided as toastmaster and brief addresses were made by the Rev. A. S. Cole, the Rev. Mr. Wright and Rabbi Kaplan.

The clock tolled the midnight hour when the gathering finally broke up after an evening that will long linger pleasantly in the memory of those of the fraternity who were present.

Mental Clinic Friday.

The Kingston mental clinic will hold its next regular session on Friday, November 18, at the county building from 10 a .m. to 12 noon, and from 1 to 2 p. m. Dr. Arthur S. Moore of the Middletown State Hospital will see those who seek advice about nervous or mental disorders. A medical consultant from Letchworth Village and a psychometric examiner from the State Commission for Mental Defectives will be present to advise in cases of mental defect or retardation.

Saugerties Board's Fine Showing.

The town board of Saugerties completed their labors as an auditing board Saturday, and the work done shows that the town affairs were conducted in a most economical manner the past year, a saving of about $2,500 over the year previous being effected. The bills audited in 1920, totaled $10,041.68, and the bills audited this year totaled $6,500.33.

Owen Gets Decree.

An order by Supreme Court Justice Abraham L. Kellogg at Delhi, granting an interlocutory decree of divorce to plaintiff in the action of George H. Owen against Moie J. Owen has been filed in the Ulster county clerk's office. The parties were married at Margaretville, April 3, 1889. Ives & Craft, Roxbury, are attorneys for the plaintiff.

Lay Is Home.

Christopher Lay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lay of Albany avenue has received his official discharge from the United States Navy, and is now at his home here. Mr. Lay has been stationed for some time at Los Angeles, California.

SUPERVISORS TURN TO CANVASSING

The members of the board of supervisors met at their rooms at the court house at noon today and organized as a board of canvassers. The supervisors were called to order by John A. Nock, chairman of the Ulster county board of elections, and the roll was called by Augustus Shufeldt, clerk of the board of elections. A quorum was present.

Supervisor Schermerhorn moved, and it was carried, that Supervisor Lester L. Sagendorf of Woodstock be chairman of the board of canvassers. He was escorted to the chair by Supervisors Schermerhorn and Fratsher, who were designated by Chairman Nock as escorts. After taking the oath to perform his duties as prescribed by law, which was administered by Mr. Nock, the same oath was administered to the supervisors by Chairman Sagendorf. The latter then thanked the members for the honor of being chosen their chairman.

Supervisor then moved and it was carried that the chairman be empowered to name three committees of three members each, to be on examining returns, on reading returns and on tabulating returns.

On motion of Supervisor Fratsher, the board of canvassers took a recess until 2 p. m. so that Chairman Sagendorf could make up the committees and report them when board reconvened after recess.

The board of supervisors will meet tonight, beginning their annual session. After the evening session a meeting of the Ulster County Supervisors' Association will be held at the court room, when officers will be elected and dues paid in.

JUDGE CLEARWATER 50 YEARS AT BAR

Monday, November 14, was the fiftieth anniversary of Judge Clearwater's admission to the bar, and the following message of congratulation was delivered to him by the Ulster County Bar Association:

November 14, 1921.

Hon. Alphonso T. Clearwater,
Kingston, N. Y.

The Ulster County Bar Association congratulates and felicitates you, Judge Clearwater, as you celebrate today your fiftieth year of admission to the bar of the state of New York. As you look back over those fifty years of service as lawyer and judge we crowd forward and join our gaze with that of countless statesmen, jurists and great men of our time and beholding your career we are justly proud to be able to say. "He is one of us." With the ornateness of Burke, the polish of Cicero and the scholarship of Gladstone you have produced a record which history will comment on in no less language than what has already been said by one of the great scholars at the bar that "Judge Clearwater is one of the great lawyers of the United States." Our best wishes go with you.

JOSEPH M. FOWLER,
President.
DUBOIS J. GILLETTE,
Secretary.

Dutchess Teachers' Banquet.

Superintendent and Mrs. John P. Gillette of Port Ewen, were the guests of the Dutchess County Teachers' Association at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, last Friday evening where over two hundred teachers and educators sat at the banquet. At the speakers' table besides Mr. and Mrs. Gillette were President and Mrs. J. H. Tanner, Prof. E. D. Warren, secretary, Dr. H. H. Horner, dean of Albany College, Dr. Baldwin, Vassar College, Dutchess county assemblymen and others.

BERNADO'S POOL ROOM IS RAIDED

By Police Monday Afternoon and 21 Cases of Home Brew, a Quart of Whiskey and Over 200 Gallons of Wine Seized—Hearing Adjourned.

Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock the police department, armed with a search warrant, descended on the pool room of Jake Bernado at No. 602 Broadway and seized about 21 cases of home brew, over 200 gallons of wine and a quart of what is said to be whiskey. The stuff was placed on the sidewalk and carted to police headquarters in an auto truck.

The raid was made by Sergeants Hanley and Phinney and Officers Keresman, Entrott, Hess and Sime Wood. They worked until 7 o'clock that evening getting the seized goods out of the pool room and into the auto truck.

Bernado, who was placed under arrest, gave bail for his appearance in police court this morning.

When arraigned before Judge Schirick he entered a plea of not guilty and the hearing was adjourned until November 18. The bail bond was continued.

BIG CONVENTION AT ELLENVILLE

A Thousand Farmers and Boarding House Keepers To Meet Nov. 24 To Discuss Ways and Means of Extending Already Flourishing Industry—Sanitation To Come In For Much Attention.

A big convention of Jewish farmers of Ulster and Sullivan counties will be held in Ellenville on Thanksgiving Day, November 24. It was originally planned to hold this gathering at Liberty, but at the request of a large number of Jewish farmers from this section plans have been changed and the location transferred to Ellenville.

It is expected that close to 1,000 farmers will be in attendance, every section of the Catskill-Shawangunk region being prepared to send its quota.

A program of more than usual interest has been prepared for the occasion. First, a banquet is going to be served at noon, free, to all of the convention guests, visitors and to the public. At the banquet addresses will be given before the assembled audience by prominent farmers and citizens from the various sections. Speakers have already been designated from the Kerhonkson section, from the Briggs Street and Ellenville sections, from the Monticello and Liberty sections, from the Livingston Manor section and from the Stevensville and Jeffersonville sections, from the Hurleyville and Loch Sheldrake sections, and other districts. It is aimed to have a speaker from every community of Ulster and Sullivan counties. Each speaker will give a short discussion on local conditions, and plans and problems for the advancement of local, social and economic life. There will also be addresses given by men of national reputation. The State Department of Health, the State Department of Farms and Markets, Cornell University, and other important institutions will have representatives present.

Dr. Edward Goodwin, sanitary supervisor for the Jewish Agricultural and Industrial Aid Society, also medical adviser for the Farmers' Sanitary League, has charge of the convention and has been devoting all his time and energy for several weeks to making it a marked success. Dr. Goodwin appeals to all citizens to assist him in all the plans and details of this big meeting and to cooperate with him as fully as possible that it may be an unqualified success. He desires to impress the fact that this coming convention has for its aim the advancement of the business and social life of the whole section. Everybody interested is cordially invited to attend. There will be no dividing lines of race or creed.

With his customary energy the doctor is planning a campaign of wide publicity. It is hoped that this first convention will be so successful that it will take its place as a recognized institution and that the farmer will look forward eagerly each year to their annual gathering.

It may be of interest to know that there are probably in the neighborhood of 2,500 Jewish farmers in this district, Ulster and Sullivan counties, practically all of them engaged in the summer boarding business. Their investment in the farm-boarding business is estimated at anywhere from twenty-five to sixty millions of dollars. These are rather astounding figures and show what a close connection there is between this business and the prosperity of this section. At the coming convention the various phases of the business will be discussed as well as matters pertaining more directly to the field of sanitation and the convention will seek to bring forth plans and methods to encourage this great industry and thus insure the success and prosperity of the economic life of this section.

WEDDING WINE MADE 'EM DRUNK

Two Newburgh Song Birds Came to Kingston Monday, and While Standing on Corner Were Invited to Sing at Wedding, and Later Arrested for Being Drunk.

William Bell and Harry Balfe, two Newburgh young men, came to Kingston Monday afternoon, and while standing on a street corner received an invitation to sing at an Italian wedding. "We make a specialty of singing at weddings you know" they explained to Sergeant Hanley this morning as their pedigree was being put down in the black book at police headquarters.

But to get back to the invitation they accepted it on the spot. This morning were unable to recall who got married or where the wedding took place. All they were positive of was that it was an Italian wedding and they sampled some Italian wine.

About 4 o'clock Monday afternoon they were found helplessly drunk on Thomas street by Officer Entrott who brought them to the city hall. They were unable to recall who they were or where they came from, but after spending the night in the lockup they were both sober this morning. One said he had just been discharged from the navy, and the other was a conductor.

In police court Judge Schirick fined them each $5.00.

ODDS AND ENDS.

The Women of Mooseheart Legion, Chapter 555, will meet this evening at Measter's Hall. All members are urgently requested to be present.

The Helping Hand Society will hold a social at the home of Mrs. Utter, No. 35 Adams street Monday evening, November 21. All members and their friends are invited to attend.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Church of the Comforter will hold their monthly business meeting in the chapel on Thursday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. A paper will be read by Mrs. Frank L. Brown. All members are urged to attend.

The King's Daughters of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church will hold an all-day quilting bee at the church on Thursday, November 17. At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon the regular business meeting and social will take place. All ladies who come to the church in the morning for quilting are requested to bring their lunch. A large attendance is anticipated.

Warren Gets Handsome Head.

Charles A. Warren, proprietor of the Warren sporting goods store on Fair street, returned Monday from the Adirondacks, where he has been spending several days on a hunting trip, and brought with him a deer he had shot weighing nearly two hundred pounds. The deer, it is believed, has the handsomest head of any specimen which has been shot by any Kingstonian in several years. The horns have twelve prongs. The deer is a magnificent specimen and will be mounted and placed on exhibition. Mr. Warren says that the Adirondacks are covered with snow and when he left there was a foot and a half of snow on the level.

Meeting of W. C. T. U.

British and Japanese Make Certain Reservations and Modifications of Hughes's Plan But What Promises To Be One of World's Greatest Steps Forward Is Well On Way To Achievement In Astonishingly Short Period.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Continental Hall, Washington, D. C., Nov. 15.—The second step in the direction of scrapping half the world's great navies and stopping all building of battleships for at least ten years, was completed today.

The British Empire, with its far flung dominions all over the world, and Japan, the island empire of the Pacific, both officially announced their acceptance "in principle and spirit" today of the drastic naval limitation proposed by the United States on Saturday.

Britain's acceptance was voiced by the tall, Hon. Arthur J. Balfour in a speech that will go down in history as one of the greatest ever uttered by a British statesman. Japan's acceptance was spoken in Japanese by the diminutive, unemotional Baron Kato, head of the ministry of marine.

The acceptance by France and Italy, which had been counted upon, followed naturally when the statesmen from London and Tokio had finished addressing the conference.

Thus, in the remarkably short space of three days, the American government had proposed a program of naval destruction and future government unequalled in the history of the world and has had it accepted as fundamentally sound by all the great powers of the world.

While accepting the American program "in spirit and principle" both Great Britain and Japan made certain reservations and suggested modifications of the program as originally proposed by Secretary Hughes.

Mr. Balfour spoke feelingly about the necessity of curbing the construction of submarines beyond the points suggested in the Hughes program. He proposed the advisability of absolutely prohibiting the construction of giant cruiser submarines which he said had demonstrated beyond all possibility of a doubt that they were not "defensive weapons."

After the tall Balfour had finished his somewhat lengthy speech, portraying the difficulties in which Britain found herself, Kato rose and spoke briefly in Japanese.

"Japan deeply appreciates the sincerity of purpose evidenced in the plan of the American government for the limitation of armaments," he said. "She is satisfied that the proposed plan will materially relieve the nations of wasteful expenditures and cannot fail to make for the peace of the world.

"She cannot remain unmoved by the high aims which have actuated the American proposal, gladly accepting therefore, the proposal in principle, Japan is ready to proceed with determination to a sweeping reduction in her naval armament.

"It will be universally admitted that a nation must be provided with such armaments as are essential to its security. This requirement must be fully weighted in the examination of the plan. With this requirement in view, certain modifications will be proposed with regard to the tonnage basis for replacement of the various classes of vessels. This subject should be referred to special consideration by naval experts. When such modifications are proposed I know that the American and other delegations will consider them with the same desire to meet our ideas as we have to meet theirs.

When the delegates had finished, Secretary of State Hughes, expressed the appreciation of this government and adjourned the meeting to meet again at the call of the chairman. He announced too that no time would be lost—that the delegates of the five powers concerned would meet this afternoon to start work on the technical details.

It was with apparent sadness and at a great effort that Balfour spoke the momentous words that are designed to end Britain's naval supremacy, which she has held undisputed for so many years. For, while Britain will on paper still have the greatest navy under the new plan, actually, according to American experts, the two navies will be almost identical in fighting efficiency.

The veteran Briton seemed to realize this as he spoke, for his address came slowly, halting and with great feeling. He drew a solemn picture of the little British Isles, dependent for its very food supplies upon its sea communication.

Japan's rejoinder, voiced by the taciturn little Kato, [illegible] expressionless. In the only [illegible] of the Japanese he spoke for a bare five minutes.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

JACK FROST'S PICTURES.

Billie Brownie was talking to Jack Frost. Jack Frost was dressed in a gorgeous suit of autumn leaves, and Billie Brownie was in his favorite and best brown suit.

Billie Brownie Went Along.

"What would Chippy Chappy and Bright Eyes and Nutty Chum and Sharpy and other of our squirrel friends do if we didn't help ripen the nuts for them?" asked Jack Frost of Billie Brownie.

"Not to mention the work we do in that way for the children!

"The squirrels must go about their winter storing soon.

"We've been about a little this autumn, but tonight we're doing our great work. Come, my fine brothers, we must be off.

"Will you come with us, Billie Brownie?"

"I'd be delighted to come," said Billie Brownie.

"Yes, I agree with you that you have a work to do, but it is fun for you, and you do enjoy being naughty and making the dear flowers droop.

"Sometimes you come too soon."

"Oh, well," said Jack Frost, "we can't be perfect all the time—if we're ever perfect any of the time!

"But we must be off now. Come along, Billie Brownie! Come, brothers."

So Jack Frost and his brothers started off. And Billie Brownie went along with them.

Jack Frost's brother, Master Chilly, carried the magic paint brushes and Master Very Cool went along humming to himself, while Master Heavy Frost sang aloud, and this was his song:

"We'll paint the windows and have such fun,
We'll visit almost every one,
We'll never be snobbish and pass some by,
We're not high and mighty, like the far-away sky.
We're just friendly and merry and playful and smart,
And for all of our naughtiness you do like our art!"

"Yes," Billie Brownie agreed, "you do paint most marvelous pictures."

All night he watched them work. He saw them going from flower to flower and he heard Master Heavy Frost say to the flowers:

"Winter is coming soon and the Old Man will bring all his family with him.

"I'm giving you a little warning, that is all, a little warning."

And each flower would look at Master Heavy Frost and would say:

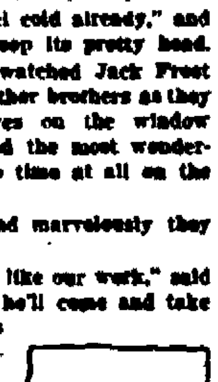

"Oh, dear, I feel cold already," and would sleepily droop its pretty head.

Billie Brownie watched Jack Frost and some of his other brothers as they perched themselves on the window ledges and painted the most wonderful pictures in no time at all on the window panes.

How quickly and marvelously they did work!

"Mr. Sun doesn't like our work," said Jack Frost, "and he'll come and take our pictures away, but no matter!

"Every one will see them before Mr. Sun has been able to get them all away."

"A Little Warning."

At last morning came, but Billie Brownie didn't feel in the least sleepy.

"I haven't begun to pay all my calls," he said. "I was so interested in seeing Jack Frost that I didn't know when to leave!

"I really meant to pay more calls last night, too. But I did enjoy watching Jack Frost and his brothers at work. That was a treat, a rare treat.

"Soon now I must be making other calls. Peter Gnome has been making a number lately, saying good-winter to his friends who're going to sleep for the winter.

"I must do the same very soon. But I wouldn't have missed the pleasure of last evening for anything."

And then he wandered off through the woods, back to Brownieland.

Juvenile Wit.

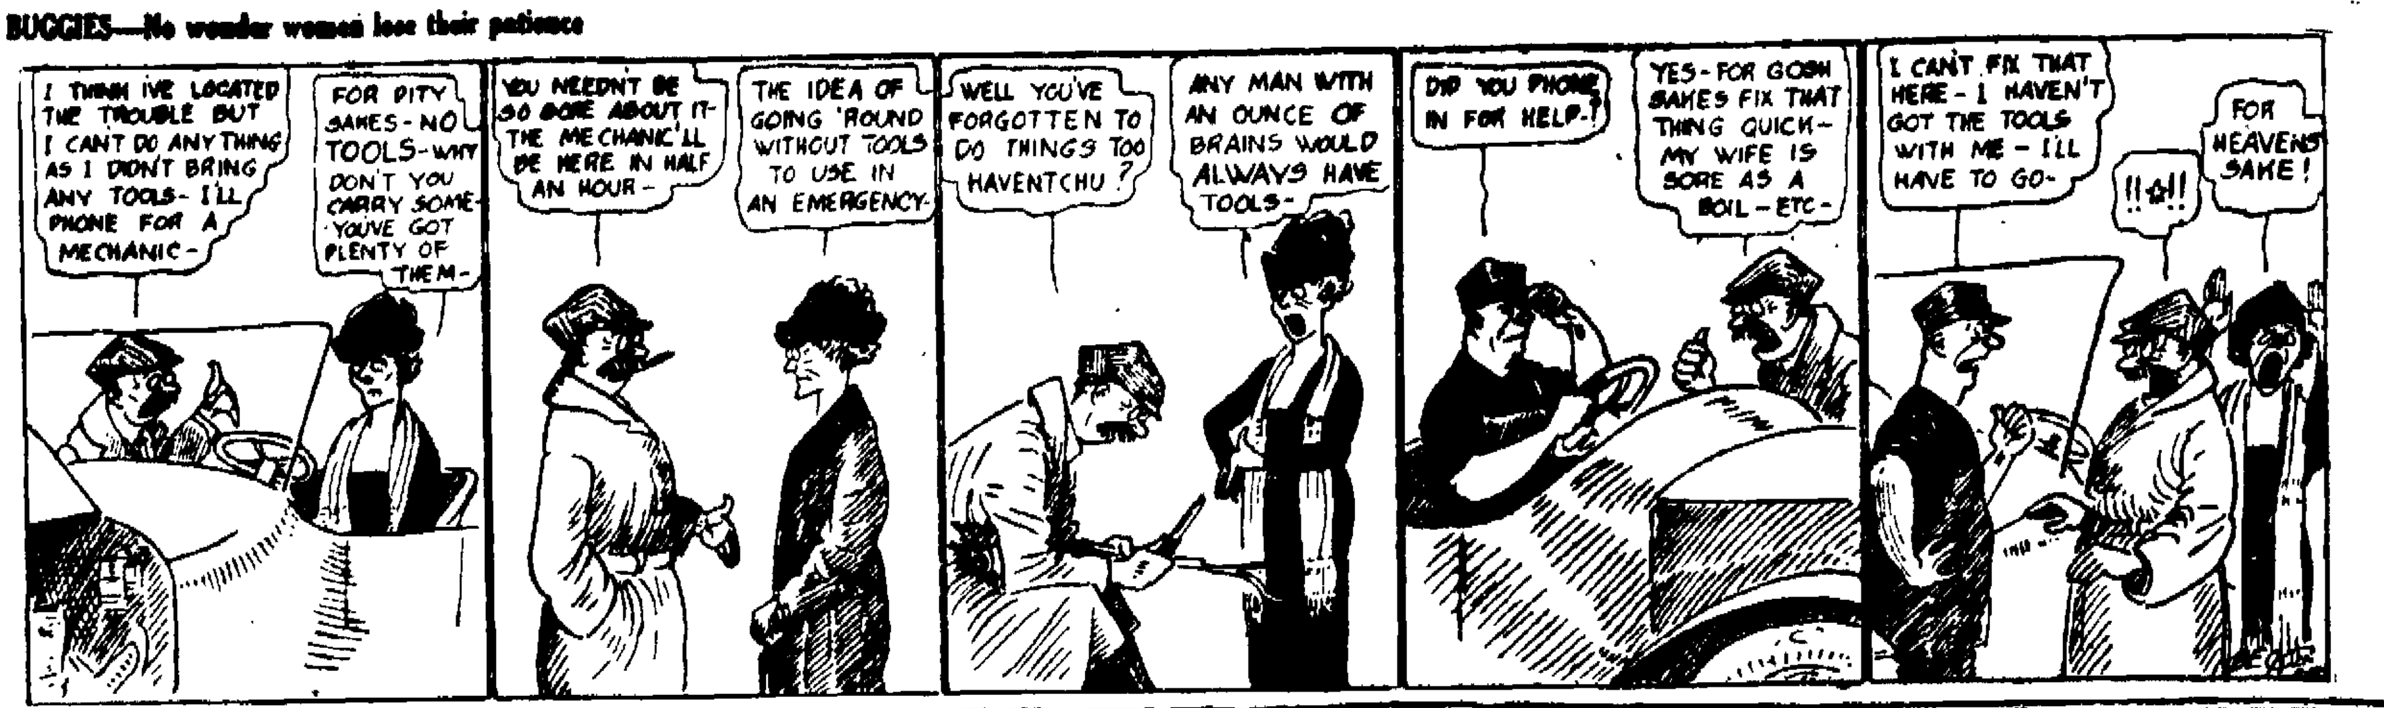

The station master, hearing a crash on the platform, ran out of his room just in time to see the express disappearing around the curve and a disheveled young man sprawled amid several overturned milk cans and the contents of his traveling bag.

"Was he trying to catch the train?" asked the station master of a small boy who stood by admiring the wreck.

"He did catch it," said the boy, happily, "but it got away again."

CULINARY HINTS.

A well made and flavored pumpkin pie is satisfying enough for most palates, but pumpkin pie de luxe is served with whipped cream, into which has been stirred some nice seasoned cheese.

It is often the mother who puts too many frills on daughter's garments who says she has no time to fuss with frills on dishes. Time is never wasted in making food attractive.

A pretty salad is one using two halves of a pear. Arrange on lettuce, flat side down, and decorate with quartered blanched almonds, putting them into the pear pointed end down. Serve with a French or mayonnaise dressing.

Frozen whipped cream, sweetened and flavored, then packed in ice and salt several hours to freeze, served with bits of ginger or candied cherries, is a delicious dessert.

Apples cored and the centers filled with bananas cut in strips to fit in the cavity, sugar and butter with a little water added, then baste while baking, makes a very pleasant variation of the everyday baked apple.

A quick dessert enjoyed by chocolate lovers is called Dresden crumbs, prepared as follows: Take one cupful of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of grated chocolate, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Stir and mix well and bake until the chocolate is melted. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

When a child or a person who is ill refuses to drink the milk or cocoa which is provided, give him straws to drink through and serve the milk in an attractive cup or bowl.

Milk toast is a wholesome dish and one which may be served to the children as well as grown-ups. Add a grating of cheese to the dish served to the adults, giving a change in flavor and also increasing the food value.

When preparing a meat loaf, add one-half to one cupful of oatmeal to the meat and arrange two or three hard-cooked eggs in the loaf so that when sliced they will add to its appearance.

MOMBACCUS HEIGHTS.

Mombaccus Heights, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Leonard Van Etten and son spent Sunday with her daughter and family at Pataukunk.

Mr. Goldberg and Isadore Myerson have returned from the city.

The Misses Alice and Rennie Green, who recently spent a week with relatives in Jersey City, returned by auto with their cousin, Harry Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred DeWitt and daughter of Napanoch spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Joel Lennon and family.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Stout of Toms River, N. J., grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. L. Van Etten, have been ill with measles, hindering Mrs. Stout from making her annual visit at her former home.

Earl Coddington of Pataukunk, while deer hunting in this vicinity, spent a night at the Morehouse home.

Mrs. Frank Green spent a few days with her daughter and family at Granite.

Mrs. William DePuy has gone to Unadilla to visit her son and wife. The latter will return with her to spend Thanksgiving with relatives in this vicinity.

Miss Pearl Green was an Ellenville visitor Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Harry Smith of Pataukunk had a quilting on Friday, followed by a most enjoyable evening. Two auto parties from this place and other friends were served an excellent chicken supper, with all the accompanying good things served on festive occasions. The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing, musical selections on phonograph and organ, singing and other amusements. Mr. Smith was heartily congratulated on his recent election as assessor by all friends present.

Miss Alice Green expects to go to Lakehurst for the winter some time this month.

Miss Margaret Smith spent a few days recently with her grandparents here.

ON-A-JOB, OFF-A-JOB JIM!

Being a Story

Of how Jim got on a job and why he got off it again.

On the morning of the third day the storm lessened, so that the government boat was able to land at the island and both Mrs. White and Jim were free to go. Jim had already made up his mind to apply for work at the life-saving station not far from the town, and carried in his pocket a letter written by Mrs. White whose uncle had charge of the station.

He got the job as soon as he had shown the letter, for Mrs. White has been extravagant in her praises and thanks. Well, young man," declared the captain, "consider yourself a member of the life-saving crew from this moment. Your first and perhaps only job will be to patrol the shore. I'll get you a pair of binoculars. Report anything that you sight, in the least bit inexplainable."

All day, in the drizzling rain, Jim paced the shore, meeting other members of the crew at noon when they gathered at the station for dinner, returning to his lonely wanderings which he continued till dark.

The next day the storm was over. The black clouds were broken, and scant patches of blue showed here and there. But the sea still appeared green and treacherous as the great rollers roared up the steep, sandy shore, and were sucked back into the hissing undertow.

Jim shivered as he watched the grey-green waters, and put his binoculars to his eyes, with a feeling of thankfulness that the ocean was not always so unapproachable.

As he glanced through the glasses, his eyes became fixed on an object far to sea. It looked like a human body being tossed from crest to crest of the waves. Jim strained his eyes but the object was elusive as it bobbed up and down, lost to sight one moment, then rising in full view the next.

Convinced that he should report what he had seen, he raced back to the station, there to find that the captain had already sighted the mysterious object.

"Nothing but a log," he stated dryly. "That's no human body."

"Where will it land, do you think?" asked Jim, not convinced.

"Judging from the rate it is moving, I should say that it will be thrown on shore half a mile towards town, in about ten minutes."

"May I go down there, sir?"

"Certainly," laughed the captain. "Anyone can see you are new at the game. What would you feel like if the glasses disclosed a steamer sinking on the ledges out there?"

Jim didn't wait to answer. He raced along the beach and was in time to pull the object in as it was thrown by a breaker. He saw at once that it was not a log or a body, but resembled a tin cake box or an old style hat box. As he shook it, something rattled within, and Jim, his curiosity fully aroused, pulled at the cover until it was wrenched off.

Within was a small sealed bottle. Inside that was a note which Jim immediately read. "I am a young girl and work in a factory in Nova Scotia. Whoever picks this up out of the ocean where I am going to throw it will please correspond with me at once as I am very lonesome. I am five feet tall and look like Mary Pickford. My name is—."

Jim looked up disgustedly. His first thought was to destroy the letter, but he didn't. "Perhaps some of the guys back there in the station would like to write. I'll give them the chance."

HURLEY.

Hurley, Nov. 14.—On Wednesday morning four of our young men started by automobile for Florida, seeking recreation and fortune in that winter resort. These young men were Leonard and Charles Lockwood, Robert Hiller and Winfred Snyder. They reached Pompton Plains, N. J., Wednesday afternoon and expected to get to Baltimore on Thursday night.

On Monday night, the young men of the "Good Citizenship Club" of this village held a banquet in the basement of the church; as the four young men mentioned above are members of the club it amounted to a farewell dinner to them. The young women of the "Willing Workers" arranged the banquet, which was most deliciously prepared, daintily served and most thoroughly and enjoyably enjoyed by the young men. Mr. Lewis, principal of the Kingston High School, and Mr. Fall, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. were the invited guests.

On Friday afternoon there was a prayer meeting held in the church with reference to the disarmament conference. Mr. French the minister, outlined briefly the spirit of the gathering in Washington and the remarks were all in relation to different phases of the purpose of the conference.

THE MILK SITUATION.

What the future holds in store for the milk situation in Kingston is a matter of interest to every householder. Conditions are about the same as they were when an expert from the state department of foods and markets was called here and after investigation made certain recommendations whereby the system of distribution might be made sufficiently efficient to warrant a price for milk in Kingston that would correspond to that in other cities like Kingston.

Apparently the inefficiency in the system of distribution remains the same as formerly with the result that the cost of distribution with consequent cost to the consumer remains much higher than it should be. A higher cost system of distribution is not beneficial either to the producer or the consumer but on the contrary both lose by it. The establishment of the city market during the past summer resulted in more money for the producer and consumer and corresponding benefit would inure to them if an efficient system of milk distribution were in effect.

Another phase of the milk situation is the continued violation of the city ordinance as regards bacterial count or grade of milk. The violation continues month after month with few breaks by certain distributors.

The producers' proposition to operate their own distributing plant in Kingston also seems to have been forgotten.

The board of health should have influence in some of these matters; the mayor as president of that body ought to have a great deal of influence in bringing about changed conditions which will be of benefit to the milk consumers of the city.

SAFE AS EVER.

Democrats with usual exuberance and lack of examination foolishly and insupportably claim a state-wide victory. The election of William S. Andrews to the Court of Appeals, however, proves conclusively that New York state, even in a so-called "off" year, is safely Republican, also that there is no danger whatever of it being anything else but Republican a year hence. Democrats can construe the election of a constable in a backwoods town as a vindication of Wilsonian policies, even if the state and county go definitely Republican. It is the Democrat method of reaching a conclusion, usually reached with emotional processes.

Returns of a week since unmistakably prove that New York state is soundly Republican. On local issues entirely two or three cities elected Democrats, but the contests were not waged on lines in which state issues were involved in the remotest manner. This Democrats wholly overlook. To show that the state is Republican, no more convincing evidence is required than the victory of Judge Andrews. People as a rule have never been known to get incensed over judicial nominations, they are not close to the rank and file. Nevertheless, in the face of bitter local campaigns there was a sufficient number who gave due thought to the election of a Republican candidate for judge of the Court of Appeals, establishing that even in the midst of heated local struggles they did not forget their Republicanism.

It is traditional, however, that, given a chance, a Democrat will contend that the election of a constable in an isolated district proves the Democratic party is on the road to national victory. But that a Republican judge was elected by 75,000 majority in a year when everything else was forgotten except local affairs, tells that the state of New York is Republican in an "off" year as this was supposed to be or in a year when a national or a state campaign is in order. There may be a county or a city which is Democratic, but New York state, as a state, is safely Republican. There is no doubt about this statement.

The theorists and reformers are having a battle these days. Everybody is taking a wallop at them. Among them who have no use for the impractical is President Harding who recently said: "No one is so immune to material success as the [illegible] human [illegible] as the theorists who never trimmed the lamp of experience." Then he added another thought which was a corker: "Countless inspections, endless reports, and expert interference are not so much designed to improve as they are calculated to destroy." Governor Miller has also offered a few thoughts along the same line.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Dept of this paper. Look for answers in this paper. Look for answers in this column.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. Kindly state how oysters are gathered or fished?
2. Does the ibex live in America?
3. Can young cedar waxwings be domesticated? What do they eat?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions:

1. What do ostriches eat?

Under natural conditions they eat grass and leaves of trees and shrubs. In captivity in this country they may pasture on alfalfa, or be fed alfalfa hay, together with a mixture of corn, with some grit, bone or shell.

2. Do Pocket Gophers live in colonies?

No, not usually even in pairs or family groups, except at the breeding season, while the young are dependent on the mother. The gopher babies grow up rather quickly, and soon start digging their own tunnels and hunting their own food.

3. Please tell me about the following small insect around my house: They look like miniature fish, are quick to move, and sometimes run in circles when chased. They get under the corners of rugs and onto pantry shelves. I see them mostly at night.

This is the silver fish, or slicker, Lepism saccharina, with slippery scaly body that makes it hard to catch. Particularly troublesome in libraries, as it eats the paste of book bindings. Eats starch from clothing, curtains, linens, etc. Pyrethrum powder will discourage it. For rules for poison, see Farmers' Bulletin 902, supplied by the U. S. Government.

VANDAL "HUNTERS."

Rouse Wrath of Farmers—Drastic Legislation Brought on Thus.

More hunting licenses are being issued this year than ever before, and more complaints are being made by rural land owners as to depredations committed by many of those who carry guns into the woods. Chickens, dogs, livestock, fences and other property, it seems, are not immune from these vandals who are a reproach to the vast majority of sportsmen who tramp over Ulster county in the fall, mostly because they like to get into the open, as few of them get game worth while. Last session of the legislature a bill was narrowly defeated which would have made it necessary for hunters or fishermen to secure a permit from a land owner before going on his land. The contemptible conduct of this small proportion of "hunters" is liable to bring restrictive legislation that will take a little of the pleasure out of life for thousands besides themselves.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, Nov. 14.—Stanley E. Krum, wife and daughter, Eula Mae, and Mr. Sheppard of Maybrook, spent a few days at the home of Virgil Barringer the past week. Mr. Krum and Mr. Sheppard took a few hunting trips, but returned to their home on Thursday very much disappointed, as they did not get a deer.

Mrs. Mary Brannen has returned home after spending some time with relatives in Big Indian.

Friends of George Van Kleeck of Samsonville Heights, are sorry to hear of his misfortune in breaking his arm.

ANOTHER SCHOOL MATINEE WED.

Manager George C. Gildersleeve of the Hathaway theatres in this city had an exciting half hour at the Kingston Opera House Monday afternoon when the theatre was literally stormed by school boys and girls who were anxious to take advantage of the opportunity to see the special matinee performance of the celebrated motion picture "The Three Musketeers," founded on the celebrated novel of that name by Alexandre Dumas.

The special matinee was given after the close of school, and there was a large crowd waiting which filled the lobby and extended into the street in all directions. The special matinee patrons could not be admitted until the theatre had been emptied of the crowd which filled the theatre for the first performance. The crowd collected so quickly that Manager Gildersleeve did not have time to explain that they must form in line and leave sufficient space for the crowd already within the theatre to get out.

Every time Manager Gildersleeve tried to get to the outskirts of the crowd which was gaining steadily in size, he was buffeted back. He reached the entrance doors several times, only to be caught in the whirl of the crowd and literally lifted from his feet he was carried to the box office. His hat was lost in the scuffle, but he did not mind that. At the end of ten minutes he succeeded in getting in the center of the doorway, where he smilingly explained, but sufficiently loud to be heard to the edge of the crowd, that nobody could get in until the large crowd already inside was allowed to pass out.

As soon as the explanation was made, the crowd, which at no time was disorderly but simply was brimming over with enthusiastic desire to get in the theatre, followed Manager Gildersleeve's suggestion and quickly cleared out of the lobby and sufficient sidewalk space so that the first audience had no difficulty in getting out and to its homes.

"The Three Musketeers" also played to capacity houses Monday evening. The picture shows at the opera house for three days.

There will be another special matinee Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock for teachers and pupils who could not get in Monday.

SOLOISTS TO APPEAR IN "FAUST"

The personnel of the Aborn Operatic Company which is to give a concert and the opera of "Faust," at the High School Auditorium on Wednesday evening under the patronage of the Junior Class of the High School, comes very highly recommended. Carl Trebbis who has appeared with some of the better operatic organizations on tour, has been chosen for the role of "Faust," because of his splendid stage presence and voice peculiarly adapted to one of Gounod's operas.

Leo de Hieropoles, baritone, who has successfully sung in many operatic roles in New York city where the press was very favorable in its criticisms of his singing, will take the difficult part of "Mephistopheles."

Nils Ericson, baritone, a prize pupil of the National Conservatory of Music and the Milton Aborn School of Operatic Training, will appear in the role of "Valentine."

"Marguerite," will be impersonated by Miss Elizabeth Gates, soprano, a far western soloist who has won much favorable criticism.

The double role of "Martha," and "Siebel" will be sung by Miss Madeleine Bossi, a mezzo soprano who has been a successful member of the Montreal Opera Company.

As stated before, this most popular opera will be given as completely as is possible without chorus and orchestra.—Miss Eloise Smith being the gifted accompanist—with full stage setting and in costume.

The opening scene, the famous garden scene and the prison scene will be given in their entirety.

Tickets may be bought, and those already bought exchanged for seat coupons this evening and Wednesday at the Y. M. C. A. after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The Junior Class report a most gratifying sale of tickets to date.

STONE RIDGE

Stone Ridge, Nov. 14.—Sunday morning, November 20, will be observed as Rally Day in the Methodist Sunday school. A special program, entitled "The Coming of the Truth," will be given by the members of the Sunday school at the time of the usual preaching service, which begins at eleven o'clock. Sunday school begins at ten o'clock. Both services are open to all who will attend.

Friday evening, December 16th, has been fixed upon as the date for the annual oyster supper under the auspices of the Men's Bible Class of the Methodist Church. The Builders' Class will also hold a Christmas fair at the same time. Many useful and pretty articles are being prepared for this fair which will be sold at very moderate prices.

Dr. Brandt, of the Methodist Hospital, Brooklyn, will speak in the Methodist Church on Sunday morning, November 27.

Mrs. George Weber is at present a patient in the Methodist Hospital. It is not at present known whether an operation will be ventured.

To Recall the Operator Move the Hook Slowly

The only right way to recall the operator is to move the receiver hook completely up and down s-l-o-w-l-y.

Every time you move the hook slowly you cause a tiny lamp to flash on the switchboard facing the operator. This signal clearly tells her you wish to speak with her.

When you rattle the hook up and down at top speed, the little electric lamp in front of the operator either does not flash at all, or else too weakly to serve you properly.

You save yourself annoyance and help yourself to better service by moving the hook in the right way—SLOWLY.

AT THE THEATERS.

"Musketeers" at Opera House—"Woman in His House" at Keeney's

Alexandre Dumas's famous historical romance "The Three Musketeers," which opened a three day engagment at the Opera House yesterday, delighted hundreds of theater goers and gave a story of action and thrills that lived up to its reputation. The cast including Orrin Johnson as "D'Artagnan," Dorothy Dalton, the queen, Louis Glaum, Walt Whitman, Rhea Mitchell and other well known stars proved a wealth of acting. Thomas H. Ince, the director spared no pains to make this production accurate and also spent a lavish hand for sheer beauty of surroundings. There will be three performances daily at 2:30, 7 and 9, also for the accommodation of the teachers and pupils who could not get in yesterday afternoon another special matinee will be given at 4 p. m. on Wednesday.

Mother-love eternal finds wonderful expression in "The Woman in His House," showing again tonight at Keeney's. A comedy and news are added features. Wednesday Jewel Carmen in "The Silver Lining," the story of a girl crook.

A new screen star, Barbara Bedford, in "Cinderella of the Hills," a story of romance and thrills in the Ozark mountains, is the attraction at the Auditorium tonight also Eddie Polo in the pirate chapter play, "Do or Die."

Colonial Theatre patrons were well pleased with the production of "A Perfect Crime" Monday night, which will be repeated this evening. It is a comedy drama. Besides there are other pictures. Wednesday and Thursday, matinees and nights, Douglas Fairbanks's late cinema, "The Nut" will be the feature picture. All next week Fairbanks will [illegible] in what is announced as his [illegible] picture "The Three Musketeers" that packed the Lyric in New York [illegible] for over two months. [illegible] singing and string [illegible] will be an added feature.

Time: a period during the Civil War. Place: Virginia.

STEALING THUNDER!

WHEN DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS presented his supreme production

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

at the LYRIC THEATRE, New York the resounding 'Boom' of the sensational hit was heard by a band of money-getters who unearthed an old film made years ago, which they presented in another theatre.

With a blare of trumpets, street ballyhoo, they tried to tell the public they had something just as good.

You can teach a Parrot to say "something just as good," but the New York public did not fall for their scheme to get some easy money from the other fellow's thunderous hit, and in spite of the bushels of free tickets, and inducements offered to school teachers to sell tickets to the school children cheap, no crowds ever stormed their doors.

Their scheme fell flat and they folded their tents like the Arabs, in the night and stole away.

In a few isolated spots in the country there is a class of theatre manager whose symbol is "Get the Money No Matter How" but the echo of the stolen thunder acts as a boomerang of empty seats because of dissatisfied patrons who are duped into believing they are seeing the real thing when it is only something "NOT SO GOOD."

WARNING!!

MR. and MRS. KINGSTON

You are being told there is something in town "just as good" but the original producer Mr. Thomas E. Ince has requested the public to please not compare his production made so many years ago, under the title of D'ARTAGNAN, as the comparison would be odious and reflect on his capabilities as a producer.

In conclusion let us state there is only one

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

and only one GREAT PRODUCTION of Alexander Dumas's immortal classic

"THE THREE MUSKETEERS"

and this SENSATION OF THE CENTURY will be shown exclusively at the

Do your Christmas hinting early.

A man is a queer proposition. He will go through the roof if the exchange girl does not give his number in half a second, and yet he will sit hour after hour in a boiling sun with the mosquitoes eating him up vainly hoping some nice little fish will come along and take a chance at his hook.

Turrible! Turrible!

One Sunday two lovers went to church. When the collection was being taken up the young man explored his pockets, and finding nothing, whispered to his sweetheart, "I haven't a cent. I changed my pants."

Meanwhile the girl had been searching her bag, and finding nothing, blushed a rosy red and said: "I'm in the same predicament."

Freezing the head is now suggested as a method to cure baldness. However, we hardly expect any bald man to follow this suggestion. It's bad enough to lift the hat to a woman friend on a cool day.

Drop a Tear in This Slot.

Her death was so sudden.
She gave up her life.
'Twas all she had.
She now sleeps silently
Beneath a willow bough;
There is always something doing.
When a freight train hits a cow.

A fire-and-brimstone lecturer, holding forth to crowd: "Ah, my friends, you must beware of the evil one. He is chained to the wall, waiting to jump out and catch you. If you give him a chance, he'll stretch out his hand in front, to the right, to the left, or behind, and grab you."

Voice from the audience—"Why, the darned thing might as well be loose."

If these bone-dry laws continue, pretty soon even a storm won't be permitted to brew.

His Father's Son.

"Tell me truly, does the baby really take after his father?"

"Yes, indeed—why, when we took the darling's bottle away, he tried to creep down the cellar stairs."

STONE RIDGE FIRST FOR HOME BUREAU

New Paltz has been leading in the Home Bureau Membership Campaign until today when Stone Ridge took the lead with New Paltz second, Plattekill third, Shawangunk fourth, and Gardiner fifth. The contest for the Home Bureau Banner is especially close this year and today will decide which community will have first place and win the banner. Plattekill was the first community to go over the top in this Home Bureau Campaign and was in the lead until Saturday when New Paltz gained first place.

Reports are still coming in from every community and it looks as if nearly every community will be on the Home Bureau Honor List this year.

In order that the reports from your community may be counted in the Banner Contest and in this campaign be sure that they reach the Home Bureau office by ten o'clock tonight.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

New Dress in Shirt Waist Style.

Pattern 3701 was used for this design. It is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 12 year size will require 3¼ yards of 36 inch material.

Gingham, seersucker, percale, drill, linen, repp, serge and gabardine, also pongee and poplin are good for this design.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12 cents in coin or stamps by The Freeman, Pattern Department, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Deer Hunters Kill Heifer.

Hunters using spot lights and armed with rifles and shotguns, mistook a valuable Holstein heifer belonging to John Ness of Beaver Brook, Sullivan county, for a deer while hunting several nights ago and riddled its body with bullets and buckshot. The heifer was one of a herd of seventeen young cattle which were in the pasture field near Mr. Ness's home and nobody has been able to explain how the other members of the herd escaped the fusilade of shots of the night hunters. Mr. Ness owns 1,100 acres and has it posted against hunting and trespassing.

Supper at St. John's.

The ladies of the Parish Aid Society of St. John's Episcopal Church will hold their annual and pleasantly anticipated chicken pie supper in the parish house Saturday evening, November 19, from 5 to 7 o'clock. There will also be held, under the supervision of Miss Kingman, a sale of fancy, useful and gift articles, and home made candy.

DIAMOND RING CONTEST.

Started in Conjunction With Coming Moose Fair.

A diamond ring popularity contest has started, the prize being a diamond ring which is being offered to the most popular young lady, by the Kingston Lodge, No. 970, Loyal Order of Moose, in conjunction with the Moose fair and convention which they will hold in St. Mary's Hall, Broadway and McEntee streets, for six nights from December 12 to 17, inclusive. The ring will be displayed in the window of William O'Reilly's store at 530 Broadway, beginning Thursday.

The Moose fair committee gave out a statement to effect that any young lady is eligible to enter the contest at any time, and all that is necessary to start her off in the race for the diamond ring is one vote or more, sent in by a friend to the Diamond Ring Committee, P. O. Box 143, Kingston, N. Y.

Miss Catherine Pillsworth of 28 Post street, Kingston, has been entered in the contest with 65 votes.

Printed coupons will be found daily in this newspaper which are to be used to vote for any young lady residing in Kingston or out of town.

The daily standing of the contestants in the race for the diamond ring will be printed every day in the newspapers.

GOD AND THE CONFERENCE.

Faith in One Will Help Other, Says Pastor.

The morning congregation at St. John's Episcopal Church, Wall street, was privileged Sunday to listen to a remarkably earnest, stirring, appropriate and inspiring sermon, the text of which "Have Faith in God." The preacher was the Rev. Frank Cookman, now of New York city, formerly rector of the Episcopal Church at Red Hook, but who during the last year has officiated at the American Church in the Latin Quartier, Paris, and at a church in the Shakespeare section of England.

Mr. Cookman made emphatic the need, now, during these days of the great limitation of armaments conference at Washington, of faith in God. The needed faith was shown, moreover, to be not a mental belief in a creator of the world, an invisible but powerful force, but a heart-deep faith in a personal, a father-hearted God, whose son, Jesus Christ, came to this earth that we might have peace. The preacher showed the absolute need at this time of every man, woman and child holding a certain and warm faith in God's power to bring out of this conference that lasting peace which shall be the semblance of His peace that passeth understanding. No person has a right today to be skeptical of the outcome of the conference, thus lessening by their thoughts the influence for righteousness that all of the delegates will so much need for their support.

FARRAR'S SALES.

Demand For Building Lots in Several Wards.

W. Arthur Farrar of Downs street, the realty broker, has sold the following pieces of real estate in this city recently. The two family house at 170 Foxhall avenue of Charles Everett to Grace Mulligan; the two family house at 154 Foxhall avenue of Rose R. Decker to Anna Dorothy Wierbach; a lot of George Washburn at the corner of South Manor avenue and O'Neil street to W. Arthur Farrar, the vacant lot on Broadway adjoining the City of Kingston Hospital owned by Rosa R. Decker to Anna Dorothy Wierbach. Mr. Farrar reports that there is an increasing demand for residential properties in the Second and Third wards and also for vacant lots, the latter demand being from people who are contemplating having dwellings erected when material and labor costs reach a lower level.

Mrs Carlson of Brooklyn is having a new two story frame house erected at Samsonville by George Halburson of that place.

"And Man, How I Did Eat Real Food!"

LOOKING BACK, now, to those vacation days, there's a lively kindling of joy—even in the memory of appetite at camp-fire meals.

Real food—and real hunger!

That's the year-around relationship between appetite and Grape-Nuts—that crisp and wholesome gift from the great out-of-doors—the perfected goodness of Nature's best food grains.

There's a flavor and charm to Grape-Nuts that appeal to the appetite like the tang of the summer camp, and there's a scientific balance of nutrition and a readiness of digestion that make Grape-Nuts a wonderful aid to health and vigor.

"Real food!" is the verdict of enthusiastic thousands who find a daily delight in the unique sweetness and crispness of Grape-Nuts, and who "carry on" splendidly with its body-building nourishment.

Let the zest of appetite be a companion of your indoor meals, too.

Grape-Nuts is sold and served wherever good food is sold and served.

'IRISH EYES'

At the

KINGSTON OPERA HOUSE

SATURDAY, MATINEE AND NIGHT, NOV. 19th

BOSTON

The Boston American:

"WALTER SCANLAN thrilled me as much as John McCormack ever did . . . "IRISH EYES" has the punch that has been missing from American life since the Camel learned to walk." Sparkling . abundant with real humor and unique situations. Go and hear Scanlan sing, you will like him immensely, also enjoy the rich clean comedy."

Boston Globe:

"Pretty story clearly and convincingly told. Delightful romance of old Ireland, with a modern touch . . accomplished performer with a sweet tenor voice . . company in every way competent."

Boston Advertiser:

"As welcome as St. Patrick's Day. Genuine entertainment. Best singer of Irish folk songs now on the stage. . personality and artistry thoroughly enjoyable. It would do Lloyd-George, who is a singer himself—it would do him good to hear this minstrel boy."

Boston Telegram:

"Charming romantic actor and a delightful singer . . successor of Chauncey Olcott and Andrew Mack as the leading Irish singing actor of the American stage."

Boston Herald:

"Play would stand on its legs regardless of the charming voice of Mr. Scanlan . . sings with ease and tonal charm . . . . an exceptionally skilled comedian."

Boston Transcript:

"Plenty of blarney and bits of Irish humor . . upstanding Irish singing comedian . . . . voice sweet, resonant and sympathetic. Unusually competent company . . . . picturesque settings gave it color and form."

Boston Traveler:

"Feels the rhythm, the lilt and substance of his songs and imports them to his hearers . . as an actor plays with heartiness and zeal."

Boston Post:

"All-Irish cast delights. fine tenor voice."

PHILADELPHIA.

Public Ledger:

"Charming comedy romance . pleasant entertainment composed of good Irish names, no doubt . . . and good humor . . If you used to like Olcott and Mack you'll want to see this show. "Irish Eyes" is good."

MORE CALLS ARE MADE FOR SUITS

Women Have Adopted Outfit for Their Uniform—Can Never Die, Maker Says.

MANY WITH VERY LONG COATS

Three-Quarter Lengths Permit Only Fraction of Skirt to Show—Keep the Straight and Long Lines.

It is hard to pry the American woman loose from her friend, the tailored suit. It is one of her most becoming assets. She likes it, she feels well dressed when she wears it, and here is the figure that displays it to the very best advantage. And, observes a fashion authority, when the calendar says that autumn is here, the suit becomes the first noticeable change in dress expression.

A prominent maker of suits—a man who has devoted the whole of his life to the study of this one by-path in women's wear—said that he had had just as many, if not more, calls for suits this season as he had had any season in the past. This statement was made in the face of the fact that the general impression seems to be, in fashion circles, that the suit is losing some of its popularity. Now this tailor believes that the suit can never die. He says he knows that women have adopted it for their uniform, just as the men need the suit for theirs. He realizes the fact that women diverge from the suit in many and varied manners, but he says that this costume as the foundation of a wardrobe is just as staple a thing as is the coffee they drink for their breakfasts.

You ask him: "Does the style of the suit change?" and he witheringly answers that it does most decidedly. Then, if you look at it with an untutored eye, it is hard to see just where the changes come in. They are subtle, and they are slow, but, he assures you, they are changes, and the last minute of fashion standard demands that they shall be made.

The encouraging side of all this slowness and subtlety is that it is not greatly noticeable—that the old suit, if it is designed along conservative enough lines, will last on indefinitely. And, combined with the smart hat and the proper accompaniment of fur, it does itself proud in the marching throng.

Length of Skirts.

The lengths of the skirts in the suits, it is nice to be able to say, have not changed so materially that the change is quick to catch the eye. They seem to be about the same, although they are really longer than those extreme knee-length sons of the summer. It behooves us to stop and think, however, that certain members of the community attempted these ultra-short affairs, and that most of the suit skirts, in particular, remained a distance of from ten to twelve inches from the floor. And that is what they are today—preferably ten, but rising to twelve where the figure is slim and slim enough to demand that compensation to its own proportions.

There is the sport suit, for which America and Americans have become so famous: there is the business suit for every occasion, and there is the dressy suit which, this season, has ventured timid into the costume dress. But each is so popular and so necessary on the other in its own way, and each one of them is destined to hold a place in the season's fashions.

Among the tailored suits shown are many with coats that are very long. That is, they may safely be called three-quarter length, for there is only a fraction of a skirt left showing beneath the ending of the coat. Then, these suits are cut in such a manner that they are long the straight, long lines for any figure. They are totally without fullness, to be sure, but they have a mysterious way of keeping straight in spite of everything. Strapping about waist is seemingly rigidly tried. The sleeves are, indeed, slim-sight and the armholes are rounded and fitted to a nicety. Sometimes there is a belt set at a low waistline and tied into place, the exact placing of the waistline being in accordance with the individual proportions of the figure. Then, some of these three-quarter tailored coats are slit at the sides from the bottom, so that the ends have a trifle of "give" to them, not being keyed to the line of the figure so unrelentingly. A tailored suit of this variety was made with bindings of its own material, which material was broadcloth, by the way, and these were cut almost an inch in width. These were laid on as flatly as could be around every conceivable edge and stitched closely on either side. The color of the suit was a dusty taupe and the stitched edgings made a good-looking finish.

Have Low-Cut Revers.

Most of these strictly tailored suits have low-cut revers, so that the closings of the coat come just above the waistlines. Then, this opening leaves room for the whitest and daintiest of French blouses, the latter being the touch without which the suit remains as nothing worthy of notice.

As for materials in the tailored suits, well, there are twills and serges that forever will be eminently satisfactory in this connection, and there are some soft, fine duvetyns and wool velours.

Suits with more or less of trimming come to us from the French designers, and, with a certain type of woman, are generally appreciated and worn in this country. Most of these, this season, are made with the longer waists and with slightly bloused effects at the waistlines. Then the embroidery is used for a wide or a narrow band around the bottom of the peplum, for the cuffs, for the collar, and sometimes for a band to run along the line where the closing of the coat is effected. One of these from Paris was made in that darkest of brown shades, which the French are pushing this season. It was then trimmed with masses of silk embroidery in a slightly lighter shade of the same color, and the trimming was concentrated over the hips in large triangular sections grouped of smaller triangular figures. This was all the trimming there was about the suit, for the cuffs of the rather loose sleeves were left plain, as was also the collar, which buttoned tightly around the throat.

The Russian influence pushes its way into the suit category more successfully than it manages to do in other types of costumes. The long-waisted blouse, the thick girdle, the straight bands of fur and the brilliant colors lend themselves to the designing of the suit with admirable facility.

Peacock Green Duvetyn.

A Russian blouse suit was made of peacock green duvetyn with a very thick and heavy surface. The bloused section of the coat was long enough to completely cover the hips, and underneath that was a straight sort of peplum of the width of only about five or six inches. There was a twisted girdle of heavy silk threads with the longest imaginable tassels ending it. And there were collars and wide cuffs of trimmer in a very dark gray shade. Another suit of this same character and general line of cut in a deep rust shade had for trimming an arrangement of heavy, loose knots of dark gray wool that were massed together quite evenly until they took on a sur-printing look of brimmer or some other lamb's wool fur.

Tailored Suit Along the Newer Lines.

Fur, indeed, is used for trimming many of the winter suits, but the fact of the matter is that in most cases it is very sparingly used. There are straight, choker collars and the smallest of cuffs, and only seldom is there a band of fur seen around the bottom of the peplum. And the furs are mostly of the short-haired variety, for the rule seems to be that, when one wants fox or sable, then the animal itself must be brought into the limelight and feticised as the piece de resistance of the street costume.

Insects Not Prohibitionists.

There are no prohibitionists among the insects, says a correspondent. Hundreds of wasps were recently observed among the fir trees of Keston lake crawling eagerly over spindles and sucking at drops of turpentine which form at this time of year. A vast humming came from the trees, reminiscent of the midsummer ring over the heated hay fields. Large flies and blue-bottles were also seen. In many cases the insects consumed so much of the firewater that they fell to the ground in a drunken stupor, or clung hazardly to the trees. The wolf-spider chasing its prey through the grass like a dog was having a rich harvest. Other insects came to the bacchanalian repast. A species of aphis was much in evidence and also its keeper, the ant, busy milking it of its gathered liquor.

Almanac an Old Institution.

Almanacs are by no means of recent invention, in fact, there is one in the British museum at present which was issued during the reign of Rameses the Great, and is about 3,000 years old. In those good old days almanacs were worth having. Instead of merely telling you that Monday was the first of April it went on and said that on that day you mustn't start on a journey, or look at a rat, or go outdoors before daylight, as these things were unlucky. This useful little affair, which is written on papyrus, was prepared for a period of four years, and contained the dates of all the Egyptian feasts—of which there are a considerable number in each year.

Wealth in Old Stamps.

An old trunk, decayed and crumbling to pieces, discovered by workmen in an attic in Philadelphia, containing nothing but bundles of letters, has been found to be worth a fortune in old stamps. "The man in the street" would never recognize the worth of such a mass of apparent trash, but philatelists say the stamps on such old letters, crude, inartistic little stickers though they are, now are worth a king's ransom. Examination of a few of the letters reveals the fact that the entire collection of correspondence once occupied the files in the law office of one William Morris Meredith, a man of large acquaintance, who received letters from persons in all parts of the country and abroad.

Largest Animal.

Most boys have seen pictures of the huge lizard which roamed the earth millions of year ago, and is supposed to be the largest animal which ever lived. Searchers in Utah have discovered some bones of an animal which was twice the size of this great prehistoric animal. A hole 600 feet long and 80 feet deep had been dug when some one claimed the land. The government thereupon created a national dinosaur monument, comprising the locality, which will be protected until the investigations are finished. The work is being directed by the Carnegie institute, which discovered and assembled the skeleton of the familiar dinosaur.—Boys' Life.

South Wales Funeral Custom.

In some parts of South Wales the local burial custom is that friends and neighbors of the deceased should take turns in carrying the coffin on their shoulders to the churchyard, no matter how far away. To take part in this kindly act is regarded at once as a privilege to the bearer and as a mark of esteem for the dead and for the bereaved family. The custom itself is reasonably supposed to have arisen from the fact that until recently the roughness of most hill tracks prevented wheeling vehicles from approaching hill farms at all.—Detroit News.

Simple Rule to Remember.

When should "fewer" be used, and when should "less"? Is it correct, for example, to say "I have no less than 100 bushels"? The rule to avoid this common mistake is to remember that fewer is used when referring to numbers—as in the above example—and less when referring to quantity.

MAKES BUILDING FUNDS AVAILABLE

The Land Bank of the State of New York has authorized the issue of $5,000,000 of 5 per cent ten year land bank bonds, the proceeds of which will be loaned to savings and loan associations for re-investment in small dwelling house mortgages. This action was induced primarily by the offer of State Comptroller J. A. Wendell to immediately purchase land bank bonds for the sinking or trust funds of the state. In a letter to Managing Director Martin S. Cohen of the bank, the state comptroller said he would buy $500,000 worth of these bonds at once, and added

"I am doing this for the reason that I consider it a worthy cause, as the money is to be used for home building purposes in different parts of the state. I am willing that your directors should use their own discretion in the disposition of this money with the understanding, of course, that it should be state-wide.

Bernard G. Parker of Gouverneur, president of the Land Bank, commenting on the action of the state comptroller, said: "This will be welcome news for many small home seekers who have been unable, because of the great demand for mortgage money, to secure accommodation from the savings and loan associations of the state, all of whom are overloaned Mr Wendell's example should lead to the placing not only of additional state funds, but of the sinking funds of some of the municipalities in a way that leads to substantial relief of the housing scarcity with incidental stimulation of the building industries that will help the unemployment situation The city of Newburgh has already acted under the law authorizing the investment of sinking funds in land bank bonds, with a result that $100,000 has gone back to the local savings and loan association there for investment with home seekers. We are appreciative, therefore, of the public spirit shown by the state comptroller in this matter We are now communicating with the savings and loan associations of the state as to their needs and have no doubt that a way will be found to dispose of the entire issue of five million dollars for the benefit of associations desiring the same."

Mr Parker said that this as well as previous issues of land bank bonds, is subject to retirement by amortization, one-tenth of the bonds being paid off annually. The associations using the funds must secure their repayment by depositing mortgages with the state comptroller to an amount exceeding by twenty-five per cent the bonds outstanding.

George I. Skinner, former superintendent of banks, and Ann E. Rae of Niagara Falls have been elected directors of the Land Bank to fill vacancies. Miss Rae is president of the State League of Savings and Loan Associations.

Some of Uncle Sam's Disabled Fighting Men Enjoying a Celebration Arranged for Them by the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross.

RED CROSS SERVES 223,427 DISABLED

The 344 Chapters in the Atlantic Division Spent $342,896 on Former Fighting Men This Year.

Disabled men in numbers sufficient to populate a good sized city were aided this year by the 344 chapters of the Red Cross in New York New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland Connecticut and Delaware, according to an announcement from Atlantic Division headquarters in New York. Approximately $342,896 was expended in caring for 223,427 veterans and their families. Reports received at Red Cross headquarters show that the men and women who have been assisted in so many ways by the Greatest Mother are among the most loyal supporters of the coming Red Cross Roll Call to be held from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving Day, November 24.

Home service, as it is designated by the Red Cross, is being carried on all over the country on the same immense scale. Every month during the year the Red Cross has been in touch with an average of 129,215 ex-service men and their families in all parts of the country. "The army of the disabled keeps growing"—last year those in hospitals under government care numbered 17,500; this year they number 26,300. The Red Cross is spending $10,000,000 annually—more than the total membership fees paid last Roll Call—in fulfilling its obligations to these heroes

Distribute Comforts

Of the 26,850 disabled men in the hospitals of the country more than 3,500 are being treated in hospitals in the Atlantic Division, and their comfort is one of the chief concerns of the Division's chapters. Red Cross workers are kept busy distributing comforts, providing entertainment and recreation and helping to straighten out family difficulties for these men A total of 780,000 cigarettes were distributed this year, 1,000 tins of tobacco given away and 2,588 sweaters donated to convalescents Loans totaling $6,952 were made and 22,529 social service cases carried through to a successful conclusion. Sporting goods and comforts were provided at a cost of $21,787.

Together with the newly formed United States Veterans' Bureau and the American Legion, the Red Cross is now participating in a nation wide cleanup campaign, which has as its aim the settling of all outstanding claims of ex-service men and women. In one month recently 6,302 claims were acted upon by the traveling squads in the six states. The number of Red Cross members engaged in this cleanup is 185, Legion workers numbering 43 and the Veterans' Bureau 149.

GENERAL SUMMERALL PRAISES RED CROSS

The work of the American Red Cross with the boys of the famous First (American) Division now stationed at Camp Dix, N. J., was given high praise by Major General Charles P. Summerall, the then commanding officer, at an entertainment staged in the Red Cross Convalescent Home at the camp. Addressing an audience of wounded veterans, General Summerall said:

"The Red Cross is a bright spot in the camp, and I never pass and see their light in the cupola without thinking of the good deeds that [illegible] performing

"The Red Cross is a great blessing. It is doing something all the time for the men, and we have never [illegible] in any camp, nor, I can say without fear of contradiction, anywhere in the army, more zealous workers than we have right here in this building. The fine men and the noble women that we have on duty here are devoting their time to give you recreation in this trying period of your convalescence, as well as to help those who need their assistance in any way

"The Red Cross lives just as we live. It is always doing good in the community and it is going [illegible] doing good. It came into existence for the same reason that the army exists and they have one sincere good in view and co-operation."

Lincoln Highway Longest Road.

The Lincoln highway is said to be the longest road in the world. It connects 12 states and is laid out between New York and San Francisco, in as direct a line as possible consistent with the topography of the country. Its length is about 3,290 miles.

THOUSANDS ARE TAUGHT IN RED CROSS CLASSES

In the last year one hundred and fifty-eight communities have been added to those in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Connecticut and Delaware that are better prepared to meet epidemics of sickness as a result of the instruction in home nursing given by their Red Cross chapters More than 15,000 women and girls were graduated from 1,277 classes in this territory during that period

The communities thus benefited are planning to show their appreciation with a record response to the coming Red Cross Roll Call, Armistice Day, November 11 to Thanksgiving Day, November 24 The graduates represent many groups and sections. In girls' camps in industrial plans, commercial organizations, churches and neighborhood groups, the effect of such teaching is making itself apparent in the broadening interest in community health problems.

The types of class rooms in which the instruction is given vary as greatly as the character of the groups themselves From university, college and city school rooms to the attic of a country school, an unused quarter of a county jail or a small community fire house are to be found the teaching centers.

Enrollment in these Red Cross classes throughout the country is increasing at the rate of more than 300 per cent annually; 1,726 instructors have taught 238,710 students, 86,570 of whom have received certificates

CHILDREN WILL SEND CHRISTMAS GIFTS ABROAD

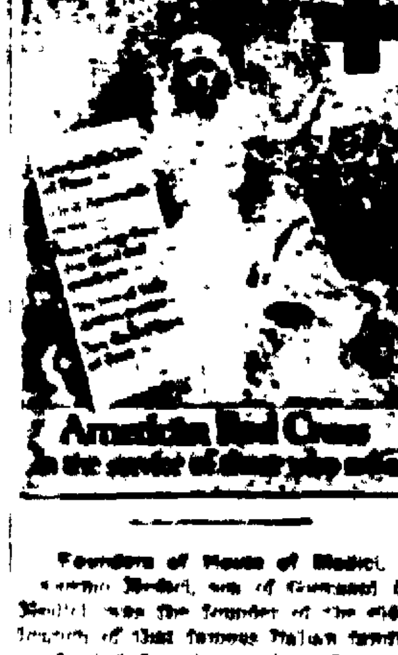

School children in the Atlantic Division of the American Red Cross, which includes the states of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Connecticut Delaware and Maryland, are now busy making their share of the 100,000 Christmas boxes to be sent to the children of Central Europe, 66,000 of which will be distributed in Vienna, 33,000 in Budapest and 1,000 among the children of the Balkan states.

Specially made boxes, bearing the Red Cross symbol and a brief Christmas greeting on the cover have been prepared to hold the handkerchiefs, wash cloths, stockings, toothbrushes, soap, dolls, marbles, tops, sweets, or whatever the children care to put into them Each box is provided with an addressed postcard to be used by the recipient to acknowledge the gift, They will be shipped from New York next month to assure arrival in ample time for distribution Christmas Day.

In the midst of this work, the Juniors are not neglecting to make preparations for the coming Fifth Annual Roll Call of the Red Cross, which will be held in the period between Armistice Day, November 11, and Thanksgiving Day, November 24.

INSTRUCTION SAVES LIFE

A week after the closing of a swimming campaign conducted by the Delaware State Chapter of the American Red Cross Thomas Rush, a seven teen-year-old boy who had learned life saving during the demonstration, saved a friend from drowning a companion who had gone down three times before he could reach him. The Red Cross is actively spreading a knowledge of life saving, thousands having been taught by the Red Cross Life Saving Corps this summer.

Founders of House of Medici.

Cosimo Medici, son of Giovanni de' Medici was the founder of the elder branch of that famous Italian family, conspicuous for the number of statesmen which it produced and for its patronage of art and letters. Lorenzo, also a son of Giovanni de' Medici, founded the younger branch of the house of Medici.

Eleanor Guggenheim, daughter of Solomon R. Guggenheim, of New York, who was married last December to the Lord Stuart, has become Countess of Castlestewart through the death of her husband's father. This is an Irish peerage, and its head traces his ancestry to the brother of King Robert III of Scotland. A son was born October 31, who now becomes heir apparent to the peerage. The marriage of the New York heiress and Lord Stuart was celebrated in St Margaret's, Westminster.

They Serve Humanity.

The man or woman who sits all day before the microscope is serving humanity as truly as did any soldier in the trench An article in The American Boy entitled "Sixteen-Cylinder Eyes" makes this pregnant comment on the work of the scientific laboratories:

"Science and the microscope are chiefly concerned now with the alteration of the serum of the human blood that renders a person immune from disease and the discovery and isolation of germs of other diseases as yet undiscovered All over the world there are men and women engaged in this research work in thousands of laboratories Day after day they sit before their microscopes hoping to trace some sly microbes to their lairs and make their extermination possible. Through this wonderful instrument humanity has been freed from untold misery and an incalculable number of deaths and through its revelations of the future may come undreamed of secrets concerning the very nature of matter and even life itself.

In a Case Like That.

A family that moved recently to a new home on Prospect avenue, well out south, was visited at once by a budding young merchant. He presented himself at the kitchen, a little fellow one dirty hand continually taking a pencil from behind an ear and then replacing it.

"Want to take milk from us?" he inquired, sure that everyone knew "us." The housewife said she didn't mind Out came a scrubby pad of paper, which was handed over, with a request:

"Sign here."

"When can we have milk?" the housewife inquired, with an eye to making plans on the next meal.

"Well," said the young merchant, desiring to be specific, "just morning and evening, 'cause that's the only time our cows give it."—Kansas City Star.

Flowers Express Hope.

There are three flowers which send out the message of hope, remarks the Detroit News One is the flowering almond and the others are the hawthorn and snowdrop. The flowering almond is a little shrub which grows from two to three feet in height and blooms in May. The color of the flower is a pinkish white. The petals are small and numerous, like the daisy or the chrysanthemum. The hawthorn is generally white, rose colored or sometimes deep crimson. It bears a small fruit with a yellow pulp. The leaf is similar to that of the oak and is cup shaped and spreads as it becomes mature. The hawthorn is often called "May" from the season of blooming in England, and it is also called whitethorn to distinguish it from the sloe or blackthorn. The snowdrop is so called from the color of the flower. The root of the snowdrop produces two leaves and one single flower, which is bell shaped, and hangs like a bell or the Dutchman's breeches.

Playing Life's Game.

The game of life is not unlike the struggle on the football gridiron. It has all types of players. Some play for the mere fun of muscular struggle, others play for the joy of winning. Some play because others play. Some play because they have no other demands upon their time. Still others feel that their very joy in living is bound up in the right to exercise and the enthusiasm of contests with their fellows. But be that as it may, we are all playing the game of life. Too many are playing to the grandstand and never become players of ability. Others just toy with the game and try to remain in the company that offers attractions for them. With the winners it's different. They put everything possible into the game. They make plays count and life rewards their zeal with gain.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS in "THE NUT"

impersonates many of the world's great men and gives to the role of an eccentric inventor a peppery interpretation, that will make him a million new friends—critics say it's the best.

The players supporting Douglas Fairbanks in "The Nut" coming to Colonial Theatre Wednesday and Thursday represent the most remarkable assemblage of veteran actors and new comers ever gathered together in a motion picture cast.

Barbara La Marr, whose remarkable beauty adds distinction to the production has appeared in only one other production. Morris Hughes made his bow to film audiences with Fairbanks in "The Mollycoddle." On the other hand, William Lowery is a pioneer picture actor and has appeared in almost every Fairbanks success. Gerald Pring is a veteran of the English stage, and has about eight years screen experience behind him. But the oldest of them all in point of service is Sydney de Grey who has twenty-seven years of playing to his credit, most of it in pictures. He played in the movies when feature pictures were only fifty feet long.

Douglas Fairbanks displays more fashionable clothes in "The Nut" than ever before in his entire film career Never at any time in this feature is he seen in a character make-up In film parlance, "The Nut" is known as a "dress-up picture". All told, the star wears twelve different suits, each representing the acme of its particular style The apparel was made to order for the star in London by the most famous tailors in the world, while Fairbanks was abroad on his honeymoon a short time ago.

In addition to twelve English suits of clothes, all of them advanced styles, Douglas Fairbanks also wears a suit of B.V.D.'s. and a paper suit cut from a clothing ad. on a billboard in his latest production, "The Nut."

ALONG the MEXICAN BORDER

Primitive Water Carts on Mexican Border.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

No region in all North America is more frequently mentioned or more widely misunderstood, perhaps, as regards places, routes, distances, and the customs of the people, than the Mexican border. The name itself brings to mind a blending of modern Americanism and the romance of the old frontiers. It hints at turmoil and intrigue at wild night rides by cavalry patrols, at gun-runners and smugglers. It suggests, too, brown-faced, snappy-eyed senoritas in red skirts and mantillas peddling tongue-blistering tamales and mild dulces; of Mexican women washing clothes, babies and dishes in irregular ditches; of burros, hens and pigs foraging about the doorways of flat-topped, squatty adobe huts.

In many ways the social cleavage of this border is sharp and startling. It cuts us off abruptly from another people showing an odd, interesting cross-section of diverse civilizations.

Nor are all the people along this line either Yankees or Mexicans. Thousands of Chinese are settled there on the Mexican side; and beside them are Turks and Japanese, and 20 Indian tribes speaking 20 of the babel of tongues heard in Mexico.

Thousands of settlers migrate to this borderland each year, losing themselves in the vast, hazy-blue stretches of its open country; but they are Americans all, mostly from the Middle West and the South. The hordes of Finns, Slavs and Neapolitans that pour into our Atlantic ports never get this far; they stop in the manufacturing centers of the East. In Texas and California, of course, native-born generations are found; in the newer states of Arizona and New Mexico most of the residents (barring children) have come from other states.

Rough and Difficult Trip.

Adventurous, colorful and full of contrasts as it is, the 1,800-mile trip along this crooked historic line is rough and difficult and has been made by few people.

Some of the wildest and least known regions of our country are piled up against this border. Ask any doughboy, of the many, many thousands who have done a "hitch" on the Mexican border, what he thinks, for instance, of Ajo or the Yuma sector.

From the gulf up to El Paso, along the Texas frontier, the Rio Grande forms the boundary between the United States and Mexico; thence to the Pacific the line is marked by stone or iron monuments (save a short break at the Colorado), so set that one is supposed to be visible from the other.

The Rio Grande part of this border has caused both Uncle Sam and Mexico much work and mental anguish. During bad floods the line as formed by the river squirms around in so astonishing and lively a manner that what is Mexican soil one day may be in Texas the next, and vice versa.

Then, too, there is the ever-recurring problem of dividing the waters of the river for irrigating purposes. Around such places as Laredo, Tex., this situation affords many an acrimonious international argument.

No spot on the whole border affords more of impressive grandeur than the region about the mouth of the Pecos. This yellow, turbulent stream roars into the Rio Grande near the town of Del Rio, foaming along the bottom of a steep-walled canyon some hundreds of feet deep in the solid rock.

Relic of Camel Experiment.

At the old fort at Camp Verde, north of Uvalde, is a relic of one of the oddest experiments ever made by our government. It is an Arab khan, in ruins now, but in its time an exact replica of the rectangular adobe caravanseries built along such caravan trails as that from Bagdad to Teheran. This khan was built back in 1856, when Jefferson Davis was secretary of war and the famous experiment was made with camels for army transport use between Texas and California.

As you follow the border west, cactus and underbrush decrease, aridity increases, and cacti lift their thorny [illegible]. Cattle, goats and sheep are [illegible] in large numbers; but, except for irrigated areas along the river, the country is [illegible]. Border [illegible] like Brownsville, [illegible] and El Paso are of amazing [illegible]—larger than some of our [illegible] eastern states. Windmills are everywhere—"big electric fans to keep the cattle cool," a waggish cowboy once explained to a London tenderfoot.

El Paso ("The Pass"), great border mart of west Texas, is set on the edge of a rich stretch of the Rio Grande valley. It stands at the point of intersection between two old highways, the first channels of traffic established by white men in America. It is the only large city from "San Antone" to Los Angeles, a ride of 1,600 dry, dusty miles. It is well served by both American and Mexican railways, and its merchants buy and sell goods for hundreds of miles below the Rio Grande. Despite the arid country about it and its occasional blinding dust-storms, its climate is exceptionally good, owing to high elevation.

The largest irrigation reservoir anywhere is the great Elephant Butte dam, which stores more water than the world-famous Assuan dam on the Nile. This big dam, built in the Rio Grande above El Paso, at a point in New Mexico, holds water enough, we are told, "to cover Massachusetts to a depth of six inches."

Juarez, El Paso's sister city across the Rio Grande, like most Mexican border towns is known chiefly because of its pitched battles and its bizarre methods of entertaining sporty American visitors. A wooden bridge spans the river here, and El Paso street cars loop over into Mexico—when the looping is safe.

Across an Arid Wilderness.

From the point at Monument No. 1, where the boundary line crawls out of the Rio Grande (at the southeastern corner of New Mexico), it strikes west into a wilderness of singularly dry and empty aspect. For 40 miles along this march the traveler must carry his own water. Near Columbus a few small trees appear.

To the west lie the rough, hostile foothills of the Dog mountains; near here, in the San Luis range, the line reaches a point 6,600 feet above the sea, marking the continental divide. Through San Luis pass runs the old emigrant trail.

Slightly west of the one hundred and eighth meridian the line turns at right angles and runs south for a few miles, thence west again.

In the San Bernardino valley the line strikes the first running water after quitting the Rio Grande—192 miles to the east. In the whole 700-mile stretch from the Rio Grande to the Pacific this line crosses only five permanent running streams, and the average rainfall throughout its length is only eight inches. Save the hamlets of Columbus and Hachita, the New Mexico section of the border is almost uninhabited.

Herding this line in pursuit of Geronimo and his Apaches was for years a favorite outdoor army sport in these parts; but nowadays most ambitious residents are mining copper, roping and branding cattle or fussing with irrigation ditches.

Not long ago coyotes were chasing horned toads over an empty desert where Douglas, Ariz., now stands, with libraries, country clubs, theaters, public baths, street cars and a hotel that might have been lifted bodily out of Cleveland or Kansas City. Just over the line from Douglas lies drab, dusty Agua Prieta, with its sleepy peons and sad-eyed burros.

Bisbee in a Canyon.

West of Douglas eight miles north of Naco, on the line, and quite hidden in the barren Mule mountains, lies the quaint upside-down, busy, bustling Bisbee. Its main street runs up a deep canyon, many of its houses clinging like pigeon coops to steep hillsides.

Of our whole border, the California section is perhaps best known to Americans because of denser population, excellent motor trails and proximity to cities like San Diego, Los Angeles, El Centro and the below-the-sea border town of Calexico opposite Mexicali. The incredibly fertile Imperial valley of California sweeps south from Calexico to the Salton sea, more than 200 feet below the sea level.

From Calexico the line runs west past Signal mountain, up the Jacumba pass over the Laguna past the historic border town of Campo, through the scene of Tecate and Tia Juana (famous for races and gambling resorts) and thence to the Pacific a few miles below San Diego.

Silence and Wisdom.

Silence is very near akin to wisdom. There are folks who may not agree with that, yet it is true. Our old friend Cato said once: "The first virtue is to restrain the tongue. He approaches nearest to the gods who knows how to be silent, even though he be in the right."

POST-WAR CLIMBING BOOM OVERTAKES ALPINE HUTS

Excursionists Present Problem Which Vexes Seasoned Swiss Sportsmen.

The extraordinary post-war boom in climbing in Switzerland, especially among the Swiss themselves, and the number of excursionists to the higher altitudes have given rise to serious difficulties, according to The London Daily News correspondent at Geneva.

The huts placed by the Swiss Alpine club at convenient stages on the principal climbs, where members may pass the night, have been besieged by tourists who have nothing to do with the club, and the members are beginning to complain of the difficulty they experience in obtaining shelter and repose before starting out on the most arduous portion of their enterprise. Many of those who use the huts have no intention of going further—as, for instance, school parties and the like—and the behavior of the juvenile element is not always conducive to restful slumber.

Tourists who can do so avoid Saturdays and Sundays for their excursions, as it is then that the "cabin crush" is at its worst, but to many bona-fide Alpinists these are the only days available, and the Alpine club is giving the matter serious attention. Some of the suggestions put forward are: To reserve the huts at week-ends exclusively for the members of the club; to have a section of such hut always reserved for their use and to forbid the sale of alcoholic beverages, which attract non-climbers.

WOMAN MAKES $150,000: STARTED WITHOUT CENT

Mrs. Olive Phillips of Los Angeles, Cal., tells her story of success. Five years ago she was practically without a cent; today she is the owner of a 98-apartment hotel in which she houses a number of millionaires. She is worth $150,000 and she accounts this as only the beginning. Mrs. Phillips started on the road to success by winning a prize story contest. This was the foundation. She started a rooming house, and as success gradually came her way she began to enlarge upon her opportunities, and continually to increase the size of her houses by buying and reselling until she acquired her 98-apartment hotel. She is now on tour throughout the United States and Canada studying methods of other successful hostelries, so that she may be able to apply their methods and make improvements upon her own.

LOBSTERS THRIVE THERE

Those Imported From Jersey Coast to Puget Sound Do Well.

Lobsters eighteen inches long are being taken from the water at Quilcene, Wash., in a newly invented gill net.

Four years ago 300 young lobsters from the New Jersey coast were transplanted on Hood's canal, an arm of Puget sound, as an experiment. The temperature of the water here averages ten degrees colder than that of the Atlantic, but the lobsters have thrived and increased.

Nets are set at intervals along the shore to ascertain just how prolific these shellfish have been. Eastern owners planted in Puget sound several years ago have increased until the home product supplies the Northwest markets.

TO REPEAT PLAY.

Proceeds for Livingston Street Church Hall.

On October 28 the Bible Class of Livingston Street Church gave a play entitled "All on Account of Polly." The play was unusually well presented all the players entering into the spirit of the same with energy and fine understanding. The play was so well received that numerous requests have been made to give it again.

The Bible Class will accede to this request and present the play on Friday evening, November 18 in the school rooms. It is hoped that a large audience will be present to reward the players for their efforts.

The play shows how the example of one person may correct and change the wrong ideas and ideals of others. The proceeds of the evening will be given to the building fund of the new hall which the congregation expects to erect. After the program a social hour will be spent as usual refreshments being served. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

In sacred and loving memory of my dearly beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Bertha Krieger, who died November 15, 1920.

In a nearby graveyard where the trees their branches wave
Lies our darling mother in her cold and lonely grave.
Her gentle voice is hushed, her warm true heart is still
And on her dear and peaceful face is resting death's cold chill.
She bade no one a last farewell, she said good-bye to none
The heavenly gates were opened, a loving voice said come.
Our sorrow is great, our loss hard to bear
But angels will tend you, dear mother with care.
When the evening shadows gather, and we're sitting alone
In our hearts there comes a longing, if you only could come home.
One long, lonely, dreary year, there comes again tonight
A picture of our darling mother, the one who made our lives so bright.
The flowers we place on our loved one's grave, may wither and decay
But the love for her, who sleepeth there, will never fade away.
The days are dark, and friends seem few
But oh! dear mother, how we long for you
HUSBAND, DAUGHTERS AND SON.

Mrs. Ralph Mohle, a daughter of former Alderman Frank X. Weirèter of this city, died at her home in Minneapolis, Minnesota, on November 7, aged 28 years. She is survived by her husband and two brothers, Walter and Leonard Weireter of Minneapolis. Mrs. Mohle was a niece of J. Leonard Salzmann of Kingston.

Alfred H. Rennie, manager of the Hotel TenEyck, Albany, was found dead in bed Monday. He had been connected with the hotel since it was built and was well-known to thousands of people who had stopped at the hotel which has been for years the headquarters of politicians. The funeral will be held at 1:30 Thursday afternoon at the Masonic temple, Albany, by Temple Commandery, K. T., of which he was a member. He was born in Coeymans.

Sarah E. Reynolds, wife of Floyd Stone, died suddenly at her home in Wittenberg Sunday, November 13, in the sixtieth year of her age. She is survived by her husband and four sons and one daughter, Gordon of New York city, Arthur of Shady, Reuben of Bridgeport Conn., Floyd, Jr., at home, and Mrs. Pratt Boice of Lake Katrine; also two brothers and three sisters. The funeral services will be held at the late residence at Wittenberg, on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Woodstock cemetery.

Mrs. Samuel Winchester, formerly Annie Lewis of Saugerties, died at her home in Schenectady on Tuesday evening, November 10, after several weeks of illness. In addition to her husband, one sister, Mrs. Carrie Montross, and three brothers, Edward J. Lewis and Fred T. Lewis of Saugerties and Frank Lewis of Newark, N. J., survive her. The funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at her late home at 3:30 o'clock. Monday the body was brought to Saugerties on the 11:18 train and taken to Mountain View Cemetery for burial.

The funeral of John P. Daley, who died at his home on John street, Rosendale, at an early hour on Thursday morning following a short illness, was held from the family residence on Saturday morning at 9:30 o'clock and from St. Peter's Church, Rosendale, at 10 o'clock, where a Mass of Requiem was celebrated for the repose of his soul by the Rev. Edward J. Higgins. Mr. Daley was one of the oldest residents of Rosendale and was held in high esteem in the community in which he had resided practically all his life time. He leaves a host of friends who will deeply mourn his loss. He is survived by two daughters, Nellie and Mary, and three sons, Joseph and John at home and Patrick of Poughkeepsie. The funeral Mass was largely attended by relatives and friends and the floral offerings were very profuse and beautiful. The interment was in St. Peter's Cemetery, Rosendale.

Monday morning at 9 o'clock the funeral of Jane M. Quinn who died at a late hour on Wednesday evening following a few days illness was held from the home of her brother, Bernard J. Quinn at 61 Van Buren street and at 9:30 o'clock, at St. Mary's Church, where a Mass of Requiem was celebrated for the repose of her soul by the Very Rev. John J. Hickey, V. F. The funeral was largely attended by sorrowing relatives and friends, who had gathered to pay their last respects to their friend and companion. Miss Quinn was a young lady possessed of a most charming and winsome personality, and a proof of the love in which she was held was silently and forcibly shown in the numerous and beautiful floral offerings which surrounded her. At the conclusion of the church services, and as the remains were being borne from the church, the choir, most feelingly rendered, "Thy Will Be Done." The deceased is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Katherine Barry and Mrs. Anna Van Ostrand of this city and Mrs. Julia Whelan of Brooklyn, N. Y., and three brothers, Bernard J. and Thomas of Kingston and Patrick of New York city. The casket bearers were four nephews of the deceased, Frank Quinn, Arthur, Leo and Edwin Van Ostrand. The interment was in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery, where the Very Rev. John J. Hickey, V. F. conducted the committal services.

SOCIETY NOTES.

William J. Farrell of Saugerties, and Miss Olive Flicker of Malden, will be married in St. Mary's Church, Saugerties, on Thanksgiving Day.

An Armistice surprise party was held at the home of James McNamara, 9 Valley street, Thursday evening. Games, dancing, vocal and piano solos were enjoyed. At midnight the guests were ushered to the dining room, where a bounteous luncheon was served. The table was artistically decorated, the color scheme red, white and blue. The favors were baskets of candy. In the small hours of the morning the guests departed for their homes, voting their host a royal entertainer. Those present were: Misses [illegible] and Florence Bush, Eva Finley, Carrie Weidemann, Mary Connors, Marge and Helen Costello, Florence Studt, Mary and Kathryne McNamara, James Cook, James Dugan, Edward Weidemann, Bernard Redmond, Andrew Juhl, William and George Wendland and James McNamara.

DeWitt-Houghtaling.

Clinton DeWitt and Mrs. Antoinette Houghtaling, both of Saugerties, were united in marriage by the Rev. Joseph A. Foster on November 12, at the residence of the bride's niece, Mrs. M. F. Battershall, County Club Grounds, Westchester, N. Y.

Monday Club.

The Monday Club met at the home of Mrs. John Forsyth this week. The paper for the day on "The Short Stories of Rudyard Kipling," was admirably and interestingly given by Mrs. Preston. This was followed by readings from "Without Benefit of Clergy," given by Mrs. Brink and Miss Munn. The club arranged for attendance at the coming Third District Federation meeting to be held next Tuesday morning and afternoon at the Chapel of the First Dutch Church, luncheon being served at noon. The club will meet next week with Miss DuBois at her residence on Pearl street.

Twentieth Century Club.

Mrs. Ward Everett entertained the Twentieth Century Club this week on Monday afternoon. Following the roll call of current events, which proved exceedingly interesting, Mrs. Harry Walker gave the paper of the day on "J. M. Barrie," which was exceptionally fine and held the close attention of all present. Mrs. Weed then gave readings from "The Little Minister." Another appreciated feature of the meeting was Mrs. Van Wagonen's report of the recent State Federation of Women's Clubs, held in Buffalo. Announcement was made of the coming third district federation meeting to be held at the chapel of the First Dutch Church on Tuesday of next week, both morning and afternoon, with luncheon served. The next meeting of the Twentieth Century Club will be with Mrs. Weed at the Huntington.

Sorosis.

On Monday evening Sorosis met with Mrs. William Kemble at her home on Clinton avenue. The evening was devoted to a study of David Grayson, Mrs. E. Terpening having the paper. "Philosophy of Life," which was one of the best papers the club has been privileged to listen to in some time. It was followed by a reading of "The Open Road," from Grayson's "Adventures in Friendship," given by Mrs. Hull. The roll call was quotations from Grayson and proved to be interesting also. After the program there was a lively discussion as to the writings and naturalist gifts of Grayson and Burroughs. The club chose delegates to the coming Third District Federation meeting to be held at the First Dutch Chapel next Tuesday at which time many State Federation women will be present. Next Monday afternoon the Club will meet with Mrs. Murray at her home, 145 Franklin street.

KAPRIELIAN STOPPED QUICK

When Hudson Car Was Knocked Around in Front of Him.

Flatbush Avenue, Kingston,
Nov. 14, 1921.

Editor Freeman:

Regarding the accident to the three auto cars on Sunday afternoon at the junction of Foxhall avenue and Stephan street and the W. S. R. R. crossing, the Hup driven by me was in no way responsible for what happened, although your report gives the impression that my Hup ran into the Hudson car.

I had just about got across the R. R. crossing and was traveling very slow and with caution, and was well on my right, in fact almost sweeping the gate, in my anxiety to give the Hudson car all the leeway possible, which I saw coming along. Just then the Chevrolet car, coming down Stephan street, struck the Hudson car, which swerved or careened around so far and so quickly that the rear of the Hudson car crashed into my car, which was already at a stand still on the R. R. crossing. Seeing what was coming I immediately stopped my car, put on the brakes, and jumped out, and hurt my leg in doing so.

I was not five seconds too quick. I did not have time to open the door but vaulted over the top of it, otherwise I would have been too late. Had I not immediately brought my Hup to a full stop, the accident might have had more serious results.

Yours, truly,
N. KAPRIELIAN.

"How's this?" asked the lawyer. "You've named six bankers in your will to be pallbearers. Of course, it's all right, but wouldn't you rather choose some friends with whom you are on better terms?" FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 15.—The stock market showed a strong tone at the beginning of business today, gains of around one point being made in many of the leading issues. The steel issues showed a better tone, Crucible advancing one point to 64 while United States Steel rose ⅝ to 82½. Northern Pacific was one point higher at 77½. Mexican Petroleum showed a gain of nearly 2 points at 114⅝ and Royal Dutch after starting one point lower at 49⅝, rallied to 50. Davisson Chemical was active and strong moving up 1⅝ points to 45⅝.

Following the upturns in many active issues during the first half hour the market again showed an irregular tendency, prices holding within a narrow range. Some copper stocks showed strength. Haskell and Barker rose 2 points to 78⅝. Reading, most active of the Railroad shares, advanced over 1 point to 71 and Northern Pacific advanced 1½ points to 78. Mexican Petroleum was in steady supply in the afternoon and sold down to 111. Royal Dutch was down over 3 points to 47⅝.

The market closed steady; governments bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds steady.

Many Partake of Church Dinner.

This year, the annual fair, turkey dinner, salad supper and entertainment at the Rondout Presbyterian Church under the supervision of the Ladies' Aid Society, Miss Katherine O. Van Keuren, president, is a Thanksgiving affair, in more than the turkey dinner end of it. The appropriate decorations were in charge of Miss Ella Van Deusen. As usual, the dinner today was very largely patronized and all who did patronize it were more than satisfied. Tomorrow afternoon between the hours of five and seven, the following salad supper will be served: Soup, turkey salad, scalloped oysters, cranberry sauce—and that when cranberries are almost a cent a berry—rolls, celery, home made cake and coffee or tea. During the evening ice cream will be for sale. Following the supper there will be a pleasing entertainment the numbers of which were noted in a previous issue of The Freeman.

No Set Time for Best Work.

Thomas Carlyle had a room built in his house in Chelsea with double wall, so that he could not hear any of the noise from outside, and in this room he wrote "The French Revolution." Gautier, on the other hand, could not think well unless he was in a newspaper office where there was lots of noise and racket going on. The human brain gets accustomed each day to a certain time for action and it works better and is more active at that time than any other time in the 24 hours.

The "Volstead Vamp," veiled woman of mystery, skirted Nemesis of booze-selling druggists and inscrutable interrogation point of police courts, has bared her mysterious soul. "I loved him, so I helped him in his work. That's all. It's really very simple." This is the explanation given by Mrs. K. Hiraga for her action in assisting a police officer in his prohibition work. She was born in Canada and married a Japanese in Vancouver, Wash., seven years ago. She was then nineteen, and now is twenty-six and still pretty and does not live with her husband. A dozen vamped and bewildered druggists have been haled into court and listened in amazement to the roguish girl tell her story of how she obtained the booze, and, after telling her story, the defendants usually left the court room with lighter pockets and heavier hearts. Policemen, speculating as to the identity of the "Volstead Vamp," have stepped into her store, purchased cigars and other things and have stepped out again none the wiser. Mrs. Hiraga says, "I'm Scotch, you know, and I like excitement. One day this officer came into my life. He made love to me, and I thought we would be married. And now, to my dismay, I find he has fallen in love with another woman. Back to the stationery store for me. No more trailing bootleggers for mine, no sir."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

Reports from various cities of the country show that, notwithstanding the present conditions of unemployment, savings bank deposits are continually increasing.

Fundamentally this is one of the most significant indications of the soundness of our economic situation, and lends encouragement to the belief that better times lie immediately ahead of us.

When the people of a nation are not practicing thrift there is cause for real alarm, but when there is a growth in savings bank deposits, which is one of the most tangible indications of popular thrift, we can feel that our nation is on the high road to substantial prosperity. It must be understood that we add to our capital only through savings. All the wealth of our nation today represents the difference between production and consumption; thus the less we waste and the more we produce the greater will be the enhancement of our capital from day to day.

Nothing so stabilizes the individual as savings, home ownership or reliable investments. The individual who has such possessions as the results of systematic thrift is a unit of progress.

It is to be borne in mind also that the potential purchasing power of the public develops only as savings grow. This would not be true if savings were hoarded in a miserly manner and represented money withheld from circulation. But money saved and put in a bank or wisely invested becomes at once an agency of construction. It is withdrawn from uses that are nonessential and becomes a part of the great machine of business development.

In the midst of the present anxiety over future business conditions the fact that the people are saving their money stands out as a significantly hopeful sign.

It is the material from which the optimist may construct most powerful arguments.

It is not only a factor in industrial rehabilitation, but it is a sign that the people of this country are doing the right kind of thinking and are practicing wise thrift.

Our various political and business leaders can do nothing that will have a more salutary effect on the business situation of America than the emphatic encouragement of popular thrift.

Better Than Water.

An invalid whose mouth becomes dry and parched during the night, or a fever patient, will find that an orange, cut into small pieces and placed within easy reach of the bed so that a piece may be held in the mouth from time to time, will be more beneficial than water. It has the added advantage that a patient can manage the piece of orange more easily than he could a glass of water.

An Aesthetic.

A number of dentists were swapping experiences the other day and one related how a colored man had brought his wife to him to have some teeth extracted. When the employment of gas was suggested the husband looked quite worried and said: "Couldn't yo' gib her suthin' a little stiffer'n dat, doctah? Couldn't you gib her gasoline?"—Boston Transcript.

ON CRAZY BRIDGE

American Crossed River Where Misstep Meant Death.

Reader Will Be in Full Accord With the Statement That It Was a "Creepy, Ghastly Process."

An American tells of crossing the Teesta river, in the Himalayan region, on a rickety bamboo bridge.

The bridge, always dangerous, was at that time a mere ragged skeleton of itself, and to make matters worse was slippery with green slime. Such bridges are usually rebuilt once in two years, but this one had evidently not been touched for much longer than that. On this narrow, tottering structure, open at the sides, the American had to cross over the turbulent, rapid river, 300 feet wide and seventy feet below the bridge.

The instant one steps on such bridges they recoil from him and swing and shake in an alarming way, rolling from side to side and pitching like a ship in a storm. They swerve with a sudden jerk every time one lifts his foot; not only sideways and lengthwise, but downward and forward, as one's weight depresses the bridge. This goes on until one passes the middle of the bridge, after which the oscillating structure kicks up behind one as he ascends.

Now, this American got on fairly well as long as he could see the bamboo rod on which he had to walk, although the open sides heightened the sense of insecurity. But away from the bank, if one looks down to see where to place his foot, the rush of leaping water in the torrent below gives him the giddy sensation that both he and the bridge are running swiftly up stream.

Yet one must keep his eye upon the single bamboo overhanging the abyss and find a shaky footing upon it, since to miss it means certain death.

The American was a quarter of the way over, perhaps, when as he stepped from one bamboo to the next it tilted up and he could see most of those in front were lying loose and disjointed in their V-slings. They had been broken away by the passing of persons who had preceded him. He could not swing round to go back; forward was his only course.

He went on with long strides to get a foothold on this shaking, swinging line of slimy bamboos. After each step he had to half close his eyes to counteract the giddy feeling of the upward rush of the bridge. It was a creepy, ghastly process. A false step meant death in the raging gulf below. After what seemed an age he reached the opposite bank.

Old Elevators Still Run.

Back in 1883, when Portland was a fledgling city, came an historical incident with the installation of the first passenger elevator in the Labbe building at Second and Washington streets. The old cage is there yet, making its regular trips. By a calculation it has traveled over 4,000 miles in its 38 years of life, half of the distance up and half down.

When it was first placed in operation it was one of the sights of the city, and no trip to Portland was complete without at least a look at the new contraption. As most of the visitors wanted to ride, it was very popular.

Just about three years after it was installed Ed. Joost came to the building, and since that time, 35 years ago, he has been running the lift, for over a decade being engineer-in-chief. In the course of events and in keeping with the march of progress the motive power has been changed from the old hydraulic system that served the down-town buildings to an electric motor, but the old cage, an elaborate structure of metal filigree, is yet on duty.—Portland Oregonian.

Women in China.

Perhaps as an outcome of a movement started early this year by Chinese women's organizations in Canton to open avenues of employment hitherto closed to women, the national assembly of the southern government has given a job to a girl. This is a clerkship and the first in Canton, if not in all China, to be given to a woman. Miss So Kan, the appointee, has been assigned to a post in connection with publication of parliamentary records.

In response to action taken by Chinese women's clubs the Canton-Samshune railway has sanctioned a plan to employ girls, while the Canton Telegraph company also is planning to include women in its working staff.

"Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me."

"Rock of Ages," hymn by Augustus Montague Toplady, was first printed in 1776, and has since become one of the most popular of all Christian hymns. It has been translated into over three hundred languages. Toplady was inspired to write the hymn when he found refuge from a thunder storm in a cleft rock. The rock was located in Blagdon parish, England.

MEN ALSO FOND OF GOSSIP

Masculine Tea Hounds Have Sharp Tongues, Is Assertion Made by English Feminine Writer.

From time immemorial the word gossip has been associated with the feminine gender, writes Rosalie Neish in the London Standard. It is women who are supposed to take away characters, start rumors and tear reputations into shreds. It may be true that women like talking about one another, and sometimes not over goodnaturedly, but are men entirely free from the gossip habit?

What about the club? Are the subjects always serious, and do not personalities form a large part of the conversation? I know a good many club men, and I have often heard with amazement what they have said about one another.

There was a time when men were supposed not only to condemn but actually to dislike a cup of afternoon tea. Perhaps there was a time when men did not gossip, and the tea and the talk have become popular together. But what about Pepys's diary?

Here were really some choice bits of gossip! If, however, you do not believe that men gossip nowadays, ask one in to tea—we will say a barrister, for example. Begin to praise one or two K. C.'s and some of the judges, and see what he will say about them; or ask a politician what he thinks of another politician, or a soldier what he thinks of some of the generals—you can apply this test to all the trades and professions.

SALT WATER MORE BUOYANT

Fact That Is Well Known to Mariners May Be News to Some of Our Readers.

A boy dropped a ball into a small hole and could not get it out, so he poured water into the hole, thinking the ball would float to the surface. As the ball was slightly heavier than the water it remained on the bottom. Then the boy thought of mixing salt with the water, since he knew salt water would float heavier objects than fresh water would. He tried this and was rewarded with the floating ball.

This particular fact is demonstrated at the mouths of rivers. Objects rolling along the bottom of a river, too heavy to come to the top, will rise when carried out to sea. The rule also applies to boats. A ship with a cargo on the sea will sink sometimes a foot or two on entering a fresh water port. If she leaves the port with her cargo, she will rise on entering the ocean. For that reason a ship may be loaded apparently too heavily at a pier and still be all right on the waves.

In building a dam, the fact of salt water's being heavier than fresh must be remembered.—Kansas City Star.

A Radical Change.

Irish Newspaper—On last boxing day some of the public houses were closed and some remained open. This year it seems the very reverse will be the case.—Boston Transcript.

TO HONOR NAME OF BURROUGHS

A national tribute to John Burroughs will be paid at a memorial meeting to be held Friday afternoon at the home of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, 15 West 81st street, New York city. The two day program will conclude with the laying of the cornerstone of the new building in 155th street between Broadway and Riverside Drive on Saturday by Marshal Foch, just after he has received an honorary degree of doctor of laws at Columbia University.

Members of the Academy and of the National Institute of Art and Sciences, diplomats and men prominent in public life of many countries will attend the Burroughs ceremony. Several thousand invitations have been issued for the ceremonies, which include the annual meeting of the Academy and luncheon for the academy members.

The day will be made notable by the election of a successor to John Burroughs as a member of the Academy. John Burroughs was elected to the academy on May 13, 1905, occupying chair 26, and he died March 29, 1921, making the fiftieth vacancy on the academy's rolls.

Among a collection of artists and literary memorabilia which the academy has gathered for exhibition during the celebration is a copy of Burroughs's poem "Waiting," written December 14, 1919, in the naturalist's own handwriting, with a note by him that the poem was first written in 1862.

A Rooseveltian flavor may be added to the Burroughs memorial by the exhibit of an original manuscript of the former president written in the African jungles on the "Hartebeeste."

Addresses on the life and work of Burroughs will be delivered by Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History; Prof. Bliss Perry of Harvard; John H. Finley, former state commissioner of education, and Hamlin Garland, novelist and playwright.

Bishop Manning will offer the invocation and pronounce the benediction at the cornerstone exercises on Saturday afternoon. Bishop Manning will also participate in the general university convocation at Columbia, of which he is a trustee.

ULEN WINS FROM HUNTER

On Latter's Court After Hard Fight Throughout.

The Ulen basketball team traveled to Hunter last Friday evening and won by the score 22-21. Dolan, former Hunter player, was in the Ulen line-up and his presence in the game caused considerable gossip throughout the crowd.

The game was fast and exciting from start until it ended.

Captain Strenk of Hunter played an excellent game, although closely guarded by Frier of Ulen. Jocelyn, playing with the Ulen quintet starred, accounting for 20 of the points of his team. This Saturday evening the Hunter team will meet the Ulen team at Shandegnon Hall.

Hupmobile

Thousands More Can Now Own This Great Car

It won't take you more than a moment to realize the vital importance of this new Hupmobile price $1250.

Not more than five cars in America, from the lowest to the highest in price, are recognized as leaders in their respective classes. Not one of these five cars has a more distinct, definite and positive reputation for leadership than the Hupmobile.

GIVES MORE SERVICE AT LESS EXPENSE

Most people hold no opinion at all of most cars, but nearly everyone—owners and non-owners alike—has the definite conviction that the Hupmobile gives more service at less expense than any car of its class in the world.

The fact of the matter is that $400 or $500 more than the Hupmobile price cannot buy, in any car, any deeper satisfaction, or more continuous economy, than the Hupmobile owner enjoys.

It is perfectly plain, therefore, that the new Hupmobile price of $1250 represents one of the very few reductions of outstanding importance which have yet been made. It is particularly important because it will make thousands of people feel now that they can afford to own the car they have always admired.

By the four great tests of motor car value—reputation for long life, reputation for economy, reputation for high resale value, and reputation for continuously satisfactory performance—the Hupmobile, at $1250, stands head and shoulders above all others in its class.

A BETTER CAR THAN IT WAS FOUR YEARS AGO

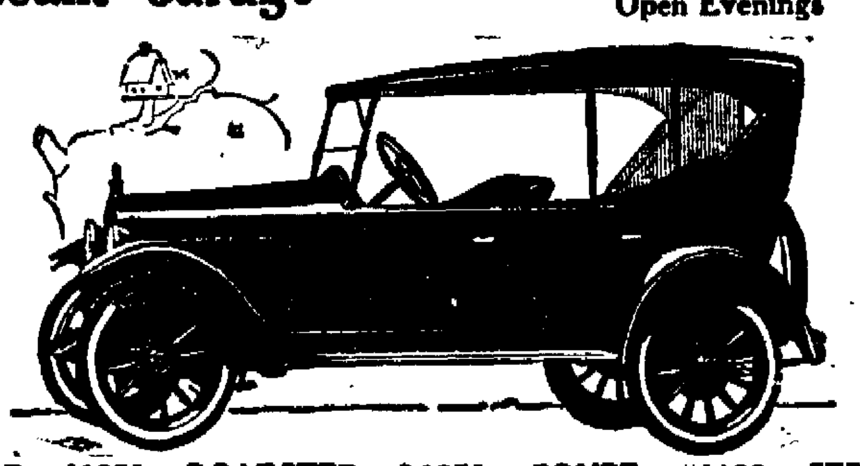

It is a better value today—a better car in many ways—than it was four years ago, when the price was the same.

You can buy the Hupmobile today in the certain knowledge that its low costs, steady service, and long life, will more than repay you, over and over again.
